Dear Shareholder,

Following this letter is the PIMCO Funds: Global Investors Series plc Semiannual Report, which covers the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2019. On the subsequent pages you will find specific details regarding investment results and discussion of the factors that most affected performance during the reporting period.

For the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2019

The global economy continued to expand, but the pace generally moderated. According to the International Monetary Fund ("IMF"), global growth is projected to be 3.3% in 2019, versus 3.6% in 2018. From a regional perspective, the US economy is expected to expand 2.3% in 2019, compared to 2.9% in the prior year. Elsewhere, the IMF anticipates 2019 GDP growth in the eurozone, UK and Japan will be 1.3%, 1.2% and 1.0%, respectively. For comparison purposes, these economies expanded 1.8%, 1.4% and 0.8%, respectively, in 2018.

Against this backdrop, the European Central Bank (the "ECB") and the Bank of Japan largely maintained their highly accommodative monetary policies. The ECB ended its quantitative easing program in December 2018 and indicated that it does not expect to raise interest rates, "at least through the first half of 2020." Meanwhile, the Bank of England kept rates on hold during the reporting period.

After raising rates four times in 2018, the Federal Reserve (the "Fed") reversed course and had a "dovish pivot." Looking back, with its December 2018 rate hike the Fed increased the federal funds rate to a range between 2.25% and 2.50%. However, at its meeting in January 2019, the Fed tapered its expectations for the pace of rate hikes in 2019. Then, after the Fed meeting in June 2019, Fed Chair Jerome Powell said, "The case for somewhat more accommodative policy has strengthened." This stance was partially attributed to trade tensions and signs of slowing global growth, including weakening manufacturing data. Finally, at its meeting that concluded on July 31, 2019, after the reporting period ended, the Fed lowered the federal funds rate to a range between 2.00% and 2.25%. This represented the Fed's first rate cut since 2008.

Both short- and long-term US Treasury yields declined. In our view, falling rates were partially due to signs of moderating global growth, the Fed's dovish pivot and periods of investor risk aversion. The yield on the two-year US Treasury note was 1.75% at the end of the reporting period, compared to 2.48% on 31 December 2018. Meanwhile, the yield on the benchmark 10-year US Treasury note was 2.00% at the end of the reporting period, versus 2.69% on 31 December 2018. The Bloomberg Barclays Global Treasury Index (USD hedged), which tracks fixed-rate, local-currency government debt of investment grade countries, including both developed and emerging markets, returned 5.52%. Meanwhile, the Bloomberg Barclays Global Aggregate Credit Index (USD hedged), a widely used index of global investment grade credit bonds, returned 8.22%. Riskier fixed income asset classes, including high yield corporate bonds and emerging market debt, also generated positive results. The ICE BofAML Developed Markets High Yield Constrained Index (USD hedged), a widely used index of below investment grade bonds, returned 10.05%, whereas emerging market external debt, as represented by the JPMorgan Emerging Markets Bond Index (EMBI) Global (USD hedged), returned 10.60%. Emerging market local bonds, as represented by the JPMorgan Government Bond Index-Emerging Markets Global Diversified Index (Unhedged), returned 8.72%.

Global equities generally produced strong results. Despite periods of volatility, US equities moved sharply higher. We believe this rally was driven by a number of factors, including corporate profits that often exceeded expectations and a more accommodative Fed. All told, US equities, as represented by the S&P 500 Index, returned 18.54%. Emerging market equities, as measured by the MSCI Emerging Markets Index, returned 10.59%, whereas global equities, as represented by the MSCI World Index, returned 16.98%. Meanwhile, Japanese equities, as represented by the Nikkei 225 Index (in JPY), returned 7.53% and European equities, as represented by the MSCI Europe Index (in EUR), returned 16.24%.

Commodity prices fluctuated and largely moved higher. When the reporting period began, Brent crude oil was approximately $54 a barrel, but by the end, it was roughly $67 a barrel. Elsewhere, gold and copper prices also rose.

Finally, there were periods of volatility in the foreign exchange markets, due in part to signs of moderating global growth and changing central bank monetary policies, along with a number of geopolitical events. The US dollar returned 0.82% and 0.45% versus the Euro and British Pound, respectively. However, the US Dollar fell 1.71% versus the Japanese Yen.

Performance quoted represents past performance. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Important Information About the Funds

This material is authorised for use only when preceded or accompanied by the current PIMCO Funds: Global Investors Series plc Prospectus. Investors should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of these Funds carefully before investing. This and other information is contained in the Prospectus. Please read the Prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

We believe that bond funds have an important role to play in a well diversified investment portfolio. It is important to note, however, that in an environment where interest rates may trend upward, rising rates will negatively impact the performance of most bond funds, and fixed-income securities held by a Fund are likely to decrease in value. The price volatility of fixed-income securities can also increase during periods of rising interest rates, resulting in increased losses to a Fund. Bond funds and individual bonds with a longer duration (a measure of the expected life of a security) tend to be more sensitive to changes in interest rates, usually making them more volatile than securities or funds with shorter durations. The longer-term performance of most bond funds has benefited from capital gains in part resulting from an extended period of declining interest rates. In the event interest rates increase, these capital gains should not be expected to recur.

The Funds may be subject to various risks in addition to those described above. Some of these risks may include, but are not limited to, the following: real rate risk, derivative risk, small company risk, foreign security risk, high-yield security risk and specific sector investment risks. The Funds may use derivative instruments for hedging purposes or as part of an investment strategy. Use of these instruments may involve certain costs and risks such as liquidity risk, interest rate risk, market risk, credit risk, management risk and the risk that a Fund could not close out a position when it would be most advantageous to do so. Funds investing in derivatives could lose more than the principal amount invested in these instruments. Investing in foreign securities may entail risk due to foreign economic and political developments; this risk may be enhanced when investing in emerging markets. High-yield bonds typically have a lower credit rating than other bonds. Lower rated bonds generally involve a greater risk to principal than higher rated bonds. Smaller companies may be more volatile than larger companies and may entail more risk. Concentrating investments in individual sectors may add additional risk and volatility compared to a diversified fund.

Past performance is no guarantee of future results. On each individual Fund summary page in this Report, the Total Return Investment Performance table measures performance assuming that all dividend and capital gain distributions were reinvested. Investment return and principal value will fluctuate so that Fund shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Returns do not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay (i) on Fund distributions or (ii) the redemption of Fund shares. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data quoted. All Fund returns are net of fees and expenses.

An investment in a Fund is not a deposit in a bank and is not guaranteed or insured by any government agency. The value of and income from Shares in the Fund may go up or down and you may not get back the amount you have invested in the Funds.

Investment Objective and Strategy Overview

Commodity Real Return Fund seeks to maximise total return consistent with prudent investment management by investing in derivative instruments (which may be listed or OTC), including swap agreements, futures, options on futures and structured notes and commodity index-linked notes, which enable it to gain exposures to any of the indices and sub-indices referencing commodities (including but not limited to any index within the Bloomberg Commodity family of indices) which meet with the requirements of and have, where necessary, been cleared by the Central Bank of Ireland. Details of any indices utilised by the Fund and the types of commodities they reference will be available from the Investment Advisor upon request. These instruments will provide exposure to the investment returns of the commodities markets without investing directly in physical commodities, and will be backed by an actively managed portfolio of global Fixed Income Instruments (as defined in the Prospectus). The Fund may also invest in common and preferred stocks as well as convertible securities of issuers in commodity-related industries.

* A new or smaller fund's performance may not represent how the fund is expected to or may perform in the long term if and when it becomes larger and has fully implemented its Investment positions may have a disproportionate impact (negative or positive) on performance in a new and smaller fund, such as the Fund. For example, the performance of certain investment strategies can benefit from purchasing smaller position sizes in certain investments (i.e., odd lot positions). The impact that these investments can have on performance may be particularly meaningful for a new and smaller fund, such as the Fund, but may not be a sustainable source of performance as the fund grows in size. New and smaller funds may also require a period of time before they are invested in securities that meet their investment objectives and policies and achieve a representative portfolio composition. Fund performance may be lower or higher during this "ramp-up" period, and may also be more volatile, than would be the case after the fund is fully invested. Similarly, a new or smaller fund's investment strategy may require a longer period of time to show returns that are representative of the strategy. New funds have limited performance histories for investors to evaluate and new and smaller funds may not attract sufficient assets to achieve investment and trading efficiencies. If a new or smaller fund were to fail to successfully implement its investment strategies or achieve its investment objective, performance may be negatively impacted, and any resulting liquidation could create negative transaction costs for the fund and tax consequences for investors.

Investment Objective and Strategy Overview

PIMCO StocksPLUS™ AR Fund seeks maximum total return consistent with prudent investment management, by using the investment advisor's proprietary portfolio management strategy known as "StocksPLUS" (which combines an actively managed portfolio of fixed income instruments with exposure to equity securities). Fixed income instruments are similar to loans and pay a fixed or variable rate of interest.

The Fund commenced operations on 29 March 2019.

Fund Insights

- » The portfolio's bond alpha strategy contributed to performance. Highlights about the drivers of performance include the following:
 - » US duration strategies contributed to performance, as yields broadly decreased.
 - » Holdings of investment grade and high yield corporate debt contributed to returns.
 - » Exposure to agency mortgage back securities detracted from returns.
 - » Exposure to US TIPS breakeven securities detracted from returns.
 - » Illiquidity premia captured from purchasing smaller sized commercial mortgage-backed securities and residential mortgage-backed securities (i.e., odd lot positions) and valuing them at round lot valuations contributed to performance.*
