

Vanguard® Japan Stock Index Fund

An Index-Related Fund

31 October 2011

Investment objective

The fund seeks to track the performance of the MSCI Japan Index, which emphasises stocks of companies located in Japan.

Investment strategy

The fund employs a "passive management" — or indexing — investment strategy designed to track the performance of the index by investing in all, or a representative sample, of the securities that make up the index, holding each stock in approximate proportion to its weighting in the index.

Quarterly fund commentary as at 30 September 2011

- The Japanese economy contracted for the third consecutive quarter as the effects of an uncertain global economic outlook and a strengthening yen weighed on business investment and exports. However, many economists continued to expect Japan to return to growth during the second half of the year.
- Despite its economic struggles, Japan (-6.44%), as measured by the MSCI Japan Index, was the top-performing developed equity market during the quarter in US dollar terms (only New Zealand performed better in local currency terms). The Japanese yen's rally persisted, as the currency gained 4.5% relative to the US dollar. Vanguard Japan Stock Index Fund closely tracked its benchmark index during the quarter.
- Performance among more cyclical sectors, such as information technology (-11.8%), consumer discretionary (-9.6%) and industrials (-8.8%), dragged results lower for the quarter. Toshiba (-20%), Toyota (-14%) and Komatsu (-28%) were the top detractors, respectively, in those sectors. Offsetting some of the weakness was strong performance from the more defensive consumer staples (+9.4%) and health care (+5.6%) sectors.
- For the 12 months ended 30 September, the MSCI Japan Index returned -0.09%. Performance was led by the consumer staples (+17.8%), energy (+14.7%) and telecommunication services (+12.4%) sectors. However, poor performance among utilities (-33.2%) and information technology (-8.3%) stocks drove the performance of the index modestly lower for the period. The 7.8% increase in the value of the Japanese yen versus the US dollar aided US dollar-denominated investors.

All returns are based in US dollars.
