Fund manager's report

- Asian equities retreated in December, hampered by worries over slowing global growth, continued trade-related concerns, and the Federal Reserve's ongoing policy tightening. The Fed raised rates for a fourth time this year, and forecast further hikes in 2019, confounding expectations for a more dovish stance.
- Meanwhile, Huawei's chief financial officer was arrested in Canada, adding to doubts over whether the US and China can resolve their trade differences. The news weighed on technology stocks, and tech-heavy markets, such as Taiwan and Korea. Amid the broad sell-off in Korea, we added to chemicals group LG Chem. We think cash flows from its chemicals business gives it a solid platform to maintain its leadership in the electric-vehicle battery market.
- During the month, we also added to Wuxi Biologics on weakness. It was caught up in the pullback in China's healthcare sector amid domestic policy changes, along with fears that American multinationals could be banned from using Chinese outsource providers. Despite these concerns, we believe Wuxi remains well-positioned to ride on the growing global biopharmaceuticals industry.

The CPF interest rate for the Ordinary Account ('OA') is based on the 12-month fixed deposit and month-end savings rates of the major local banks. Under the CPF Act, the CPF Board pays a minimum interest of 2.5% per annum when this interest formula yields a lower rate. In addition, the CPF Board pays an extra interest rate of 1% per annum on the first $60,000 of a CPF member's combined balances, including up to $20,000 in the OA. From January 2016, CPF members aged 55 and above will also earn an additional 1% extra interest on the first $30,000 of their combined balances (with up to $20,000 in the OA). This is paid over and above the current extra 1% interest that is earned on the first $60,000 of their combined balance. The first $20,000 in the OA will not be allowed to be invested under the CPF Investment Scheme.
