Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2023

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The MSCI Europe Index returned 11.1% in euro terms in the six months to 30 June 2023.

Global equity markets rallied despite persistent inflationary pressures which led central banks to implement significant further tightening of monetary policy.

The European Central Bank, for example, implemented two successive 50 basis point interest rate hikes in the first quarter of the year, with President Christine Lagarde commenting on the Bank's intention to "stay the course in increasing interest rates significantly, at a steady pace". In the second quarter, it twice lifted its benchmark deposit rate by a 25 basis point margin, taking it to 3.5%. The bank's president, Christine Lagarde, commented that a further hike in July is very likely due to the outlook for eurozone inflation to remain "too high for too long". Over the course of the six months, the peak eurozone interest rate priced into futures markets rose from 3.5% to 4.0%.

In March, the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank in the US sparked some contagion fears as investors worried over the impact of deposit flight for banks sitting on unrealised bond portfolio losses following two years of rising yields. Credit Suisse was the highest profile casualty in Europe, forced to be subsumed by UBS as its value tumbled, but heavy losses were experienced across the financials sector. However, investor sentiment recovered swiftly as it became clear that systemic problems were not materialising, and markets rebounded. Attention then turned to the unsettling prospect of a technical debt default in the US as its deadline to extend its debt limit loomed large. A last-minute deal was eventually achieved in the early days of June.

Rising rate expectations would usually be expected to result in strong relative performance from value stocks compared with their growth counterparts. However, the MSCI Europe Growth Index outperformed the MSCI Europe Value Index by over five percentage points during the six months.

This strength in growth stocks was aided by gains for the technology sector. By some margin, the best performing stock in developed world stockmarkets was US-listed Nvidia, whose share price almost trebled over the six months. It designs hardware and software seen as essential for many Artificial Intelligence (AI) applications, and its share price performance is emblematic of significant investor excitement over AI which has permeated throughout to the global technology sector.

Within the MSCI Europe Index, the information technology sector recorded a 27% return, leading the index higher. It was closely followed by consumer discretionary, which rose 24%, and industrials, which notched up an 18% gain. Only real estate (-8.5%) and energy (-1.8%) lost ground in the MSCI Europe Index in euro terms. There was also a size bias to returns, with the MSCI Europe Large Cap Index outperforming the MSCI Europe Small Cap Index by over five percentage points.

Analysis of Portfolio Return

The Sub-Fund's Class A4 Euro Accumulating returned -0.4%* in euro terms in the six months to 30 June 2023. The Sub-Fund's comparator benchmarks, the MSCI Europe Index and HFRX Equity Hedge EUR Index, returned 11.1% and 1.8% respectively.

The Sub-Fund's net exposure averaged around 50% over the six months, restricting its participation in the subsequent market rally. The long book was around 90% of NAV, but its returns moderately lagged those of the market; the Sub-Fund's positions returned around 7.5% while the market returned 11.1%. The short book's average position of 40% led to a negative contribution in a rising market environment – one which was exacerbated by a few large share price gains on specific positions.

These strongly rallying stocks in the short book included two online European pharmacies, after signs that Germany's long-awaited introduction of e-prescriptions is nearing. A loss-making UK manufacturer of luxury sports cars also rose sharply as full-year results predicted that cash burn would turn around in the second half of the year.

Within the long book, the market environment was not conducive to our application of a bottom-up, stock-picking style based on cash flow characteristics. Investor risk appetite appeared to be driving returns more than company fundamentals.

Promotional merchandise marketer 4imprint Group was one of the long book's strongest stocks. Shares in the promotional merchandise group have been in an uptrend since last summer when it reported on very strong trading. It initially released a 2022 trading statement which said profits would be above analysts' expectations, before going on to report full year results showing a 45% increase in revenues to £1.1bn with a trebling of operating profit to £103m as it acquired over 300,000 new customers. Later in the period it released an AGM statement describing very strong demand seen during the first four months of 2023, with order intake up 22% year-on-year.

Rexel was another portfolio highlight. The French company specialising in the distribution of electrical, heating, lighting and plumbing equipment grew sales by 14% like-for-like in 2022, with earnings rising by a third. Its 2023 outlook was notably stronger than investors had expected, with sales growth forecast to be between 2% and 6%.

Jeronimo Martins also rose strongly across the six months. The Portuguese owner of supermarkets, cash-and-carry and beauty stores in Poland, Colombia and its domestic market released Q1 results that beat consensus forecasts, helped by profit margin improvements in Poland. While management stayed cautious in its outlook for the remainder of the year, analysts moved to upgrade full-year earnings estimates.

The long book's weakest performer over the six months was Spirent Communication, the provider of automated test and assurance services for communication networks. Early in the year, it commented that a weak economic backdrop had led to some customers delaying investment decisions. The company said a soft outlook for order demand in the first half of the year will lead to a heavier than usual weighting towards the second half of 2023, but maintained its targets. However, when releasing full-year results in March, Spirent noted that this trend had continued and warned that 2023 revenues may show a slight decline as a result.

Pharmaceuticals company Indivior was another detractor. It fell sharply in February after it revealed that it had put aside $290m for ongoing litigation in the US to cover multidistrict antitrust class and state claims relating to its promotion of the Suboxone drug. Its shares recovered much of the lost ground in June as Indivior released details of an agreed settlement, removing some of the uncertainty that had weighed on the shares.

At the end of April, Fortnox issued Q1 results which showed rapid organic sales growth of 32% and better-than-expected operating profit after margins rose to 38%. Although this initially propelled the shares higher as analysts upgraded their forecasts, their valuation came under scrutiny in May and June, leading some investors to take profits. Fortnox is a Swedish provider of cloud-based business applications, including accounting tools. Despite the apparent high valuation, our investment process identified significant value in the shares due to its high cash return on assets score, and the position was added to the portfolio during this year's portfolio restructuring.

Portfolio Activity

Over the six months, the SubFund's net market exposure was significantly increased, from around 20% to over 80%.

The shift primarily stems from an expansion of the long book. Our technical indicators have now moved into a firmly established uptrend in Europe. This, combined with valuations that look fair, has driven an increase in long book exposure from around 65% to almost 120% of NAV.

The short book has been scaled back more moderately, from 43% to 36%, in reflection of declining evidence of corporate over-investment in Europe (a contrarian measure).

In terms of composition, while we retain the long book's bias towards value, this is now much less of a relative bet against growth-style stocks and we are now approaching a neutral stance on growth. The secondary scores we are currently focused on targeting are momentum, recovering value and cash return.

Outlook

According to our technical measures, European and US markets are now in more firmly established uptrends. Valuations in Europe remain at fair value while the US has moved from expensive to close to fair value. Encouragingly, Europe is now following the lead of the US in terms of reduced aggressive corporate behaviour, suggesting a more constructive backdrop for markets in the medium term.

Stylistically, we expect both value and momentum to perform well. Our momentum indicator for Europe is sitting at a high level which typically suggests a highly favourable backdrop for the style and subsequent strong performance. It is worth noting however, that our momentum indicator for the US is not nearly as positive suggesting some caution in this market at this point.

Value in Europe is still cheap relative to history, should benefit from higher inflation and is continuing to mean revert following a very long period of underperformance. Growth stocks in Europe are clearly less expensive versus recent history but still not yet cheap, and our measures of value relative to quality suggest that the former is still cheap.

Liontrust GF Special Situations Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2023

Past performance does not predict future returns.

The Market

The FTSE All-Share Index returned 2.6% in the six months to 30 June 2023.

Uncertainty over the path of inflation and interest rates remained a feature of markets over the six months.

Equity markets started 2023 strongly, helped by expectations for a softer landing and fewer interest rate rises, before macroeconomic releases began to point to unexpected economic strength and inflation persistence, which reined in excitement over the prospect of an imminent interest rate 'pivot'.

UK, European and US base rates were all raised several times across the period, with the Bank of England's June increase representing its 13th consecutive hike. It raised rates by 50 basis points in February, stepped down to 25 basis point increments for March and May hikes, and – in a surprise move – shifted back to a 50 basis point increase in June, taking the base rate to 5.0%. Its latest move came in the wake of data showing consumer price inflation remained stubbornly high at 8.7% in May, the same level as April and defying forecasts of an easing to 8.4%.

Investors' preoccupation with interest rates was punctured in episodic fashion during the first half of the year, with March's short banking crisis providing one such focal point. News of Silicon Valley Bank's demise shifted the market narrative briefly to one of banking system resilience, with First Republic Bank and Credit Suisse among the institutions to fail. However, stockmarkets ultimately recovered ground fairly swiftly as investors were content that systemic problems had been side-stepped through the swift action of regulators in the US and Europe.

Attention then turned to negotiations on extending the US debt limit, which weighed on sentiment through to the start of June when a last-minute deal was struck.

There was once again a strong size bias to the UK stockmarket's returns over the six months. The large-cap FTSE 100 Index returned 3.2%, which compares with the 0.6% return from both the mid-cap FTSE 250 Index and FTSE Small Cap Index and the -8.5% performance of the FTSE AIM All Share Index.

The emergence of country-specific factors – such as Brexit-related labour shortages – which have driven expectations of UK inflation and interest rates higher than many other developed markets, has coincided with a period of relative strength for the typically more internationally diversified FTSE 100 large-cap index. Since the start of 2022, the FTSE 100 Index has now outperformed the FTSE 250 Index by 23 percentage points.

The Sub-Fund

The Sub-Fund Class C3 Sterling Accumulating returned -1.2%* in the six months to 30 June 2023.

The size return profile of the market was a performance headwind given the Sub-Fund's exposure to mid and small caps of around 50%, which is significantly greater than the FTSE All-Share weight of around 16%.

The Sub-Fund's relative overweight position in mid and small caps leaves it exposed to shifts in sentiment towards these segments, but we retain our high conviction in the Sub-Fund's smaller companies and believe many of them have been unduly affected by the indiscriminate de-rating of listed stocks.

Looking at stock specifics, the Sub-Fund's largest two positive contributors to performance were Sage Group and Compass Group, as both slightly increased full-year profits guidance when announcing results for the six months to 31 March.

Sage Group, the provider of SME-focused online accountancy, payroll and HR tools, reported a 12% increase in underlying recurring revenue, driven by 29% growth in its Sage Business Cloud product to £787m. As a result, it has upgraded its full-year recurring revenue growth target to 11%, which compares with analyst consensus of about 10%, and also expects operating margins to improve this year and in future periods; for the first six months, operating margins expanded by 1.6 percentage points to 19%.

Global catering group Compass recorded 25% organic revenue growth to £15.8bn as balanced growth in demand for outsourced services fed through in all its regions, more than offsetting the impact of some pockets of macroeconomic weakness. It upgraded its full-year outlook, with the organic revenue growth target raised from 15% to 18% and operating margins expected to be 6.7% - 6.8% (versus 6.5% previously). As a result, operating profit growth is now expected to be 30% rather than 20%.

Staying within the Sub-Fund's large-caps, RELX moved higher as 2022 results showed it to be reaping the rewards of its shift in recent years from publishing to information and analytics. It recorded 9% underlying growth in revenues, with adjusted operating profit rising 15%. In its outlook comments, RELX forecasts that these growth rates in revenues and profits will remain above historical trends as its long-term growth trajectory improves.

Precision measurement specialist Spectris was another portfolio highlight, also performing well after releasing earnings figures. Its 2022 results showed 19% growth in profit before tax to £220m, ahead of consensus forecasts of £208m. Sales rose 14% in like-for-like terms to £1.33bn over the year, above its high single-digit percentage target, as both volumes and prices rose. Engineering peer IMI also strengthened over the period. Its first quarter trading statement showed 16% year-on-year growth in revenues on an adjusted basis, with margins improving in all three of its operating divisions, allowing it to upgrade full-year earnings guidance. IMI designs, manufactures and services highly engineered products that control the precise movement of fluids. It has extensive intellectual property, manufacturing valves used in some of the world's harshest environments, and also strong distribution channels, with operations in over 50 countries.

In terms of disappointments, Future was heavily penalised after it warned that results for the year to 30 September 2023 would be at the bottom end of market expectations. Future is a multi-platform media company owning a number of content brands in specialist consumer and B2B sectors which it is seeking to digitise. It commented that challenging market conditions had persisted, including a wider market slowdown in audience numbers, and that it is increasing its investments in pursuing growth in the US market.

Future is a good example of the extremity of share price weakness experienced by some mid and small cap companies over the past year. The shares roughly halved over the six months as investors digested its exposure to short-term macroeconomic headwinds and also to the potential longer-term challenge from the rise of generative Artificial Intelligence.

However, we think it remarkable that the market appears to be pricing in an existential decline of the business over a very short time frame, and entirely discounting the competitive advantage of Future's premium content, market leadership positions and attractive business model. It continues to generate prodigious amounts of free cash flow which would recoup an investment at its current share price in only five years. It is valuation opportunities such as this, thrown up by the market turmoil of the past few years, which have prompted us to selectively top up our positions with our focus on long term alpha generation.

Intellectual property support services provider RWS Holdings was another heavy faller, thanks to both the impact of forecast reductions and also being caught up in wider market concerns about the impact of generative AI models on company business models. RWS has faced a number of recent headwinds to trading, including macro-related delays to decision-making among some customers (notably large technology clients based on the US west coast), regulatory bottlenecks impacting life sciences translation clients, and a backlog of work building up in its IP Services division ahead of the introduction of the EU Unitary Patent in June 2023.

Aside from RWS Holdings and Future, other holdings such as Next 15 Group and Keywords Studios have also been hit by investor uncertainty over AI and how to accurately assess the potential threats and opportunities presented by this significant technological shift.

It will inevitably take some time for the implications to be fully understood by the market, and we have been in active dialogue with companies to better understand the potential impacts.

We always strive to be alive to risks which may threaten the competitive position of our holdings, with generative AI now another factor to consider. However, we continue to believe that our long-term investment approach remains a powerful driver of returns. In many cases the market has been quick to price in significant downside from AI in terms of business model disruption but has – in our view – underestimated the extent to which many of these companies could prove able to successfully integrate AI into their existing product offerings and leverage their key competitive strengths to reap the productivity and efficiency benefits of this technological shift for both their customers and themselves.

Portfolio Changes

During 2022, the Sub-Fund saw four positions exit due to impending takeover deals - Clipper Logistics, Ideagen, CareTech and EMIS Group – and three new smaller positions initiated – Team 17, Midwich and Focusrite.

There were no further changes to the Sub-Fund's portfolio of holdings in the first half of 2023.

Outlook

Overall, while there have inevitably been individual instances of stocks disappointing on short term earnings, we have been very encouraged by the trading resilience of the companies in the Sub-Fund, despite the wider macroeconomic challenges. A comfortable majority of the Sub-Fund's holdings provided updates on trading which were either in line with consensus expectations or beat forecasts.

Inevitably, markets use a broad brush when reacting to economic developments and do not differentiate between companies until later in the cycle when the successful ones are able to show, by their delivered results, their superiority. We believe that the Sub-Fund is invested in companies which are dependable, consistent businesses in possession of barriers to competition which give them pricing power. The average portfolio company has a strong balance sheet with conservative borrowing and a strong majority of the smaller companies actually hold net cash.

We note that, if investors are concerned about a weakening outlook for the UK economy in particular, data from Factset estimates the portfolio's overseas sales exposure to be around 77%, in line with the FTSE All Share benchmark, despite its greater weighting towards mid and small caps. Many of our mid and small caps can already be considered genuinely global businesses, with all the benefits of geographic diversification and growth runway which that entails.

The Sub-Fund

The Sub-Fund Class C3 Sterling Accumulating (Institutional) returned -0.2%* in the six months to 30 June 2023, compared with the 2.6% return of the FTSE All-Share Index.

Around two thirds of the Sub-Fund is invested in large caps, underweight versus the FTSE All-Share's 83% exposure to FTSE 100 stocks. The majority of the remainder of the portfolio (around 20%) is invested in mid cap stocks, with the small cap component capped at a maximum of 10% (currently around 6%).

This small relative overweight position in mid and small caps leaves it somewhat exposed to shifts in sentiment towards these segments, but we retain our high conviction in the Sub-Fund's companies and believe many of them have been unduly affected by the indiscriminate de-rating of share valuations.

In terms of detractors, British American Tobacco shares have been weak in 2023, underperforming the FTSE All-Share Index after a strong 2022. Investors are concerned that a weakening US cigarette market might lead to a guidance cut, as the company plans a transition towards reduced risk products. In a surprise announcement in May, the company announced the immediate removal of its CEO and promotion of its finance director to the top role.

Future was heavily penalised after it warned that results for the year to 30 September 2023 would be at the bottom end of market expectations. Portfolio Changes

Two new positions were added to the Sub-Fund in the first half of 2023: Tatton Asset Management and YouGov.

Tatton Asset Management's core division has been a significant market disruptor, offering its low cost discretionary portfolio management service, predominantly via a model portfolio service, to financial advisers nationwide. Consistent strong organic net flows have led assets under management to grow rapidly to around £13bn currently. We believe Tatton possesses key intangible asset strength in the form of its significant recurring revenue.

YouGov is a leading market research, analytics and data business providing important information to corporate clients and media agencies about their end customers and markets. The company's competitive advantage stems from its vast and ever-growing database, amassed over 20 years and derived from a panel of over 24 million members. Its distribution strengths are underpinned by the global reach of its panel – covering 59 markets – and its 39 offices and 1,650 employees around the world.

Overall, while there have inevitably been individual instances of stocks disappointing on short term earnings, we have been very encouraged by the trading resilience of the companies in the Sub-Fund, despite the wider macroeconomic challenges. Liontrust GF European Smaller Companies Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2023

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The MSCI Europe Small Cap Index returned 5.7% in euro terms in the six months to 30 June 2023.

Global equity markets rallied despite persistent inflationary pressures which led central banks to implement significant further tightening of monetary policy.

The European Central Bank, for example, implemented two successive 50 basis point interest rate hikes in the first quarter of the year, with president Christine Lagarde commenting on the Bank's intention to "stay the course in increasing interest rates significantly, at a steady pace". In the second quarter, it twice lifted its benchmark deposit rate by a 25 basis point margin, taking it to 3.5%. The bank's president, Christine Lagarde, commented that a further hike in July is very likely due to the outlook for eurozone inflation to remain "too high for too long". Over the course of the six months, the peak eurozone interest rate priced into futures markets rose from 3.5% to 4.0%.

In March, the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank in the US sparked some contagion as investors worried over the impact of deposit flight for banks sitting on unrealised bond portfolio losses following two years of rising yields. Credit Suisse was the highest profile casualty in Europe, forced to be subsumed by UBS as its value tumbled, but heavy losses were experienced across the financials sector. However, investor sentiment recovered swiftly as it became clear that systemic problems were not materialising, and markets rebounded. Attention then turned to the unsettling prospect of a technical debt default in the US as its deadline to extend its debt limit loomed large. A last-minute deal was eventually achieved in the early days of June.

Rising rate expectations would usually be expected to result in strong relative performance from value stocks compared with their growth counterparts. However, the MSCI Europe Growth Index outperformed the MSCI Europe Value Index by over five percentage points during the six months.

This strength in growth stocks was aided by gains for the technology sector. By some margin, the best performing stock in developed world stockmarkets was US-listed Nvidia, whose share price almost trebled over the six months. It designs hardware and software seen as essential for many Artificial Intelligence (AI) applications, and its share price performance is emblematic of significant investor excitement over AI which has permeated throughout to the global technology sector.

Within the MSCI Europe Index, the information technology sector recorded a 27% return, leading the index higher. It was closely followed by consumer discretionary, which rose 24%, and industrials, which notched up an 18% gain. Only real estate (-8.5%) and energy (-1.8%) lost ground in the MSCI Europe Index in euro terms as it rose 11% overall. There was also a size bias to returns, with the MSCI Europe Large Cap Index outperforming the MSCI Europe Small Cap Index by over five percentage points.

Analysis of Portfolio Return

The Sub-Fund's Class A3 Euro Accumulating (Institutional) returned 3.8%* in the six months to 30 June 2023.

The portfolio continues to carry a tilt towards value factors, albeit with less of a bias against growth stocks than for the majority of the last three years. In terms of relative performance against the index, this turned from tailwind to headwind in the first six months of 2023.

The Sub-Fund has a relatively low exposure to IT, the star sector in the first half of the year, but does hold ATOSS Software, which rose after reporting on strong 2022 growth and raising its guidance for 2023 to 2025. The German workforce management software provider grew revenue by 17% to €114m, with operating margin of 27% - ahead of the 25% expected. It raised its sales forecast for 2023 from €125m to €135m, for 2024 from €145m to €160m, and for 2025 from €170m to €190m.

Promotional merchandise marketer 4imprint Group was another of the Sub-Fund's strongest stocks. Shares in the promotional merchandise group have been in an uptrend since last summer when it reported on very strong trading. It initially released a 2022 trading statement which said profits would be above analysts' expectations, before going on to report full year results showing a 45% increase in revenues to £1.1bn with a trebling of operating profit to £103m as it acquired over 300,000 new customers. Later in the period it released an AGM statement describing very strong demand seen during the first four months of 2023, with order intake up 22% year-on-year.

Pandora also made gains on the back of its 2022 results release. The Danish jewellery manufacturer and retailer posted Q4 sales of DKK9.9 billion, beating analysts' expectations, with organic sales 4% higher than the same quarter in 2021 and 19% above the pre-pandemic levels of Q4 2019. It went on to release Q1 results for 2023 which showed 1% organic growth and a 1.5 percentage point expansion in gross margin. It slightly upgraded its full year organic growth guidance range from a -3% to +3% range to -2% to 3%.

Rexel was another portfolio highlight. The French company specialising in the distribution of electrical, heating, lighting and plumbing equipment grew sales by 14% like-for-like in 2022, with earnings rising by a third. Its 2023 outlook was notably stronger than investors had expected, with sales growth forecast to be between 2% and 6%.

The Sub-Fund's weakest performer over the six months was Spirent Communication, the provider of automated test and assurance services for communication networks. Early in the year, it commented that a weak economic backdrop has led to some customers delaying investment decisions. The company said a soft outlook for order demand in the first half of the year will lead to a heavier than usual weighting towards the second half of 2023, but maintained its targets. However, when releasing full-year results in March, Spirent noted that this trend had continued and warned that 2023 revenues may show a slight decline as a result.

Pharmaceuticals company Indivior fell sharply in February after it revealed that it had put aside $290m for ongoing litigation in the US to cover multidistrict antitrust class and state claims relating to its promotion of the Suboxone drug. Its shares recovered much of the lost ground in June as Indivior released details of an agreed settlement, removing some of the uncertainty that had weighed on the shares.

French market research group Ipsos lost ground as it announced a 2.9% year-on-year decline in first quarter revenues to €532m. The company blamed a strong comparable figure in Q1 2022, which was boosted by a post-pandemic rebound in the Americas, and a "cliff-edge" end to large Covid pandemic contracts which were still a major revenue stream this time last year. In addition to these base effects, the quarter was also held back by some clients – particularly major US tech companies – delaying spending decisions due to macroeconomic uncertainty. Ipsos remains confident of hitting its full-year targets, noting that its order book is about 50% of its annual sales targets, in line with historical trends.

At the end of April, Fortnox issued Q1 results which showed rapid organic sales growth of 32% and better-than-expected operating profit after margins rose to 38%. Although this initially propelled the shares higher as analysts upgraded their forecasts, their valuation came under scrutiny in May and June, leading some investors to take profits. Fortnox is a Swedish provider of cloud-based business applications, including accounting tools. Despite the apparent high valuation, our investment process identified significant value in the shares due to its high cash return on assets score, and the position was added to the portfolio during this year's portfolio restructuring.

Portfolio Activity

We began to make some of the first portfolio changes resulting from the start of this year's annual review process. While we retain the portfolio bias towards value, this position is now much less of a relative bet against growth-style stocks and we are now approaching a neutral stance on growth. The secondary scores we are currently focused on targeting are momentum, recovering value and cash return.

Fortnox, Gestamp Automocion, Dunelm Group, Greggs, Betsson, Salvatore Ferragamo, Wienerbeger, Norwegian Air Shuttle, BPER Banca, Vesuvius and Playtech all joined the portfolio. Holdings to be sold included BW Energy, Balfour Beatty, Spirent Communications, Indivior, WH Smith, Solar, BW Offshore, Tethys Oil, Forterra, Strabag Mobilezone, Deutsche Pfandbriefbank and Man Group.

Outlook

According to our technical measures, European and US markets are now in more firmly established uptrends. Valuations in Europe remain at fair value while the US has moved from expensive to close to fair value. Encouragingly, Europe is now following the lead of the US in terms of reduced aggressive corporate behaviour, suggesting a more constructive backdrop for markets in the medium term.

Stylistically, we expect both value and momentum to perform well. Our momentum indicator for Europe is sitting at a high level which typically suggests a highly favourable backdrop for the style and subsequent strong performance. It is worth noting however, that our momentum indicator for the US is not nearly as positive suggesting some caution in this market at this point.

Value in Europe is still cheap relative to history, should benefit from higher inflation and is continuing to mean revert following a very long period of underperformance. Growth stocks in Europe are clearly less expensive versus recent history but still not yet cheap, and our measures of value relative to quality suggest that the former is still cheap.

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2023

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund returned 1.0%* (Class B5 Accumulating US Dollar) in US dollar terms in the six months to 30 June 2023.

The average return from the EAA Fund Global Flexible Bond (Morningstar) sector, the Sub-Fund's reference sector, was 2.2%.

The start of 2023 witnessed a strong rally in fixed income assets as premature hopes for a turning point in the monetary tightening cycle were reflected in market prices. It soon transpired that bond markets had become too sanguine about the inflationary outlook, attempting yet again to price in a "dovish pivot" by central banks. The prevailing themes then became stronger economic data and the need for higher terminal interest rates in order to conquer inflation.

In March, the markets' attention shifted to the failure of three banks, Silicon Valley Bank and Signature Bank in the US as well as Credit Suisse in Europe. The writedown of Credit Suisse's Additional Tier 1 (AT1) bonds to zero during the rescue takeover by UBS caused particular chagrin in some corners of the bond market.

Our view was that this was not a systemic crisis; the banks involved had all shot themselves in the foot in some way or other over the last few years, either completely mis-managing the duration of their assets (relative to their liabilities) or having a series of scandals that eroded stakeholder trust.

Although legitimate market concerns remained about the asset quality of some US regional banks due to their exposure to commercial real estate lending, deposit flight from the system gradually slowed. Some of this deposit flight would have been motivated by fears of bank failure and deposit loss, but much of it was driven by investors seeking out yields at the front end of the bond market which now looked very attractive relative to deposit rates.

The tightening in lending standards and fall in economic sentiment following this banking 'mini crisis' did some of the Federal Reserve's monetary tightening job for it. The Fed subsequently pushed through its second 25 basis point (bps) hike of the year, taking rates to a 4.75% to 5.0% range, but stopped short of raising its forecast level of terminal rates as many had expected.

With contagion from the US regional banking crisis contained, markets then moved on to their next main worry, the US debt ceiling. Ultimately, a lastminute bipartisan compromise between the Democrats and Republicans led to the suspension of the debt ceiling until January 2025.

Bond markets then refocused on economic fundamentals and the ongoing tightening cycle by central banks.

The latest meeting of the US Federal Reserve's (Fed) rate-setting committee produced what we characterise as a hawkish pause in the monetary policy tightening cycle. The Fed funds rate was held steady at the 5.0% - 5.25% range, but both the accompanying statement and its economic projections were hawkish in nature. The committee members increased their projection for the end-2023 interest rate to 5.50 - 5.75%, up from the 5.00% - 5.25% forecast in March. However, bond markets didn't believe the projections would be met, and priced in a very low probability of two hikes occurring this year.

The European Central Bank (ECB) twice raised rates by 50bps in the first quarter of the year before slowing its pace of tightening to 25bps for two hikes in May and June, taking its deposit rate to 3.50%. The ECB is almost certain to raise rates in July, but there is debate amongst the members over whether a further rate hike is required in September.

In the UK, inflation data made very unpleasant reading with May data showing falling inflation in non-core items, food and energy, offset by stronger inflation in core goods and services. Headline UK consumer price inflation was unchanged on the month at 8.7% against expectations of a 0.3% reduction. Core CPI continued to rise, increasing by 0.3% to 7.1%.

This is very much seen as a domestic issue, driven by ongoing large nominal wage gains (real wages are still shrinking) and service sector corporates retaining sufficient pricing power to pass cost increases on. The UK's inflation problem has rotated into the services sectors of the economy; inflation here can be remedied if the central bank chooses to inflict sufficient pain on the economy.

The Bank of England (BoE), in response to this worrisome inflation data, surprised the market by hiking rates by 50bps to 5.0%. The market had only priced in about a 35% chance of a 50bps hike, while economists had hoped for 50bps but assumed 25bps.

We continue to believe that monetary policy has already overshot to the upside in the UK, but base rates will go higher still. Having had the wrong approach during the Covid crisis and been very slow to take away the proverbial punchbowl, the BoE is now having to work hard to regain credibility. With the infamous long and variable lags of monetary policy, a large overshoot is inevitable in this monetary cycle, and we see very little chance of the UK avoiding a recession.

The Sub-Fund is constructed as a portfolio of interacting risk positions with alpha anticipated to arise from sources in: Rates, Allocation and Selection.

Rates

The Sub-Fund started the year with core duration of 5 years. We reduced this to 4.5 years in the first weeks of 2023 as we believed bond markets were pricing in a too sanguine view and underestimating the chance of further rate rises from central banks.

A combination of strong employment data and inflation exceeding expectations then led to a rapid reversal in fortunes for sovereign bonds and, as yields rose, we added duration back – taking core duration to 5.75 years at the end of February. We took some profits on this position as government bonds then rallied during March's banking crisis, but added duration back as conditions calmed.

May then brought significant bond weakness which we used to build up to a meaningful strategic long duration position which reached 7.5 years by the end of June – well above the Sub-Fund's neutral level of 4.5 years, but retaining a little headroom below our 9-year maximum.

The geographic split of the duration is 2.75 years in the US, 2.4 years in the UK, 1.75 years in Europe, and 0.6 years in New Zealand.

We refer to core duration above as, for much of the period, the Sub-Fund also had a 0.5 year short duration in Japan. The Japanese Government Bond (JGB) market is much lower beta than other sovereign bond markets, partly due to the ongoing market manipulation by the Bank of Japan as part of its Yield Curve Control (YCC) policy. The JGB market has become dysfunctional so the YCC policy is no longer fit for purpose and we felt that the new Bank of Japan governor Ueda was likely to try to find a gradual exit. However, an April press conference suggested that this may take some time – a year or longer. We would argue that Japan has created economic conditions where inflation can sustainably meet the 2% target, but Ueda's opinion matters far more than ours and it looks like he will take his time before changing the YCC approach. We therefore decided to close out our short duration position in Japanese bond futures, which were offside in absolute terms but up in relative terms.

The Sub-Fund also established a curve steepener position in the US as we believed that the inversion of yields between 2-year and 10-year bonds had gone far. The yield curve inversion reached a 1% differential in June, so we implemented the steepener with a duration-neutral position comprising a 0.25 year duration short in the 10-year future and 0.25 years long of the 2-year future. Excluding the period just before SVB failed in March, the last time the curve was this inverted was in the late 1970s/early 1980s.

Because the 10-year bond is naturally longer duration than the 2-year, the duration-neutral steepener position involves much higher notional fund exposure in the latter. Combined with the 2-year bond's higher yield, this means the position adds about 4 basis points to the Sub-Fund's yield each month.

Allocation

Strategically, we believe credit offers long-term value both examining spreads and, particularly, the all-in yield. But with the tensions between rate rises and recessionary risk, there will inevitably be further volatility in credit markets. If credit spreads widen enough to make valuation levels become very compelling again, then we will increase allocations significantly.

Investment grade and high yield exposure both remained close to their neutral levels of 50% and 20% over the period. As a reminder, we have a quality bias within credit, limited exposure to the most cyclical parts of the credit market, and the Sub-Fund owns no CCC rated bonds.

When exuberance in rates markets in January and early February fed through to a tightening in credit spreads we introduced a CDS index overlay to hedge some high yield exposure – specifically buying protection on the iTraxx Xover CDS index, a proxy for the European high yield market. In fortuitous timing, we took net high yield exposure down to 17% just prior to March's banking mini-crisis. As valuations then improved, we raised the net high yield weighting back to neutral level of 20%.

Later in the period we added some more single-stock credits to our high yield allocation but used the CDS overlay to keep net exposure limited at 20%.

At the end of June, investment grade exposure was 50% and net high yield exposure was 19% - the net of a 24% weighting in high yield bonds and a 5% overlay hedge in the iTraxx Xover CDS index.

Selection

A natural market implication of increased yields is a gradual re-couponing of debt as issuers refinance their liabilities. As old low-coupon debt gradually matures over the coming years, companies will have to pay a much higher coupon, commensurate with today's market yield levels, to attract capital. The downside to this is a deterioration in interest coverage ratios and free cash flow for the companies. This is another reason why we avoid those issuers with the most fragile balance sheets. The upside is that bond investors receive a significant boost to the running yield from the higher coupons and that lifts future expected returns from the asset class.

There were two good examples of existing issuers paying up to access the bond markets, both issuing senior secured debt. Firstly, Loxam issued 5-year Euro denominated debt with a 6.375% coupon. We really like this equipment rental business as they have great local economies of scale and can flex the size of its fleet during downturns to manage cashflow. Secondly, Cheplapharm, a specialist pharmaceutical company, issued 7-year Euro denominated debt with a 7.5% coupon. Both represent great opportunities to lend to quality companies at a senior secured level with attractive yields.

We also added Sealed Air 5-year US dollar bonds. For this high quality (high BB rating) defensive packaging name, a yield of 6.125% for 5-year bonds was both cheap outright and relative to their existing bonds.

Staying in the Sub-Fund's high yield holdings, we exited the position in Catalent. A rapid succession of profit adjustments and delays to its reporting raised governance concerns for us. Longer term, we still like the fundamentals of the business, but we want to be able to gain confidence in the robustness of its financial statements before we would feel comfortable buying back into the bonds.

We also sold out of short dated Drax bonds in US dollars which offered little residual upside. Two higher beta holdings were sold too: subordinated debt issued by both Telefonica and AT&T. The companies themselves are great credits but hybrid bonds do exhibit elevated market volatility.

Within investment grade, a new issue from Brambles offered a great entry opportunity to buy bonds in a defensive credit and leader in the circular economy (reusable pallets and packaging containers) at an attractive credit spread.

We also added a Tier 2 bond issued by Allianz. The bonds have a 30 year maturity and are callable after 10 years; to compensate for this structure, one is paid a significantly higher credit spread. Overall, a 5.824% coupon for this single-A rated instrument offers compelling long-term value.

Bonds issued by stock market stalwart, 3i, were a further addition to the investment grade exposure. Although one of its portfolio holdings (Action) has become an outsized position for it, this is only due to its success. 3i's gearing is very low, and its long-term investment approach and diversity appeal to us. A spread of 278bps for a 6-year BBB+ rated bond is very attractive.

Balancing these additions, sales included Credit Suisse senior debt in early March – where we were concerned about ongoing deposit outflows but did not expect such a rapid demise to occur – and a reduction in exposure to Pershing Square, which proved less liquid than we desired despite the credit looking fundamentally very solid.

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future European Corporate Bond Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2023

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Sub-Fund Review

The Sub-Fund returned 3.0%*(Class A1 Accumulating Euro (Hedged)) in euro terms over the period, compared with the 2.2% return from the Markit iBoxx Euro Corporates Index comparator benchmark.

Market Backdrop

Financial markets generally had a strong start to the year, as stronger than anticipated economic data and falling headline inflation heightened optimism of a soft landing and that central banks are approaching the end of the monetary policy tightening.

This optimism was further supported by the reopening of the Chinese economy, with the potential easing of supply chain pressures supporting lower inflation and stronger growth more broadly.

However, as we progressed through the period, core inflation continued to surprise to the upside, alongside more resilient economic data, raising the prospect of a prolonged period of higher interest rates.

In March, renewed inflation concerns were eclipsed by the significant volatility following the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank (SVB) in the US, which was swiftly followed by Credit Suisse's plight in Europe. SVB's demise marked the second largest bank failure in US history, after suffering large deposit outflows following a failed equity raise to bolster its capital position due to losses on its long-dated Treasuries investments.

This sparked fears about contagion risks for the broader banking sector resulting in large deposit outflows from US regional banks and the re-introduction of emergency funding programmes by the Federal Reserve.

These fears were further amplified by the downfall of Credit Suisse, which saw similarly large deposit outflows amidst waning confidence in the bank after it revealed regulator concerns regarding accounting irregularities after already being under heightened scrutiny. Ultimately, this led to government intervention in order to save the bank, with a last-ditch sale to UBS agreed which included significant guarantees and backing by the Swiss government.

Most notably for bond investors, the rescue deal resulted in the full write-down of the bank's AT1 securities, despite ranking senior to equity investors who received some compensation, undermining the conventional bank loss absorption capital structure.

This understandably undermined confidence in the AT1 asset class, and subordinated bank debt more broadly, with bond investors concerned that in the event of resolution they may actual rank junior to equity holders.

The concerns over the resilience of the global banking system saw a flight to safety, causing a significant rally in government bonds and resulting in strong returns from duration assets, including corporate bonds and growth stocks. However, volatility and banking sentiment recovered swiftly, as all major central banks came out to reiterate their confidence in the financial system with the risks largely seen as contained, which reassured investors. There were some concerns that a wider impact on the banking sector from these failures would lead to tightening in credit conditions, but the failed banks' problems were specific to each bank and not a wider sector issue.

The second quarter proved to be a difficult period for global bond markets, as central banks continued their focus on tackling persistent levels of inflation, with core inflation in particular proving more stubborn than expected. Central banks reacted by raising interest rates in order to rein in inflation towards target levels. This, coupled with accompanying hawkish statements, resulted in markets pricing in higher terminal interest rates.

The European Central Bank increased interest rates by 50 basis points (bps) over the quarter with successive hikes in May and June, taking the deposit rate to 3.5% whilst also signalling that they still have further to go. This was in response to the ongoing persistence in inflation, as despite headline inflation falling to 5.5% in June, core inflation showed little sign of easing at 5.4%. In contrast, there continues to be clear evidence pointing to a slowdown in the economy, with the Eurozone entering a mild technical recession following two consecutive quarters with a -0.1% contraction in GDP.

Meanwhile, forward-looking indicators also continue to deteriorate, pointing to a further slowdown. UK government bonds underperformed as yields rose to levels not seen since the mini-budget turmoil last September. The Bank of England increased rates by 25bps in May and then surprised the market by following this with a further 50bps increase to 5.0% in June. The step up to a 50bps increase followed strong wage growth of 7.2% reported in June, with UK headline and core inflation also surprising to the upside.

The Bank signalled that further rate hikes would be increasingly data driven going forward, with Governor Bailey acknowledging that inflation was taking longer than expected to come down. The market reacted by pricing in further rates increases, with the terminal rate forecast to be above 6%, driving yields sharply higher. Economic data continued to be resilient, although the effect of recent rate increases has not been fully felt by households, due to many being on fixed rate mortgages. This is expected to feed through over the next 18 months as these cheap fixed rate deals expire.

In the US, the Federal Reserve (Fed) raised interest rates by 25bps in May, and left rates unchanged in June. This was the first time in over 12 months that the Fed has not increased rates, although the accompanying dot plot of rate predictions showed two further rate rises in 2023. US inflation continued to decline due to base effects and is now 4.0%. Economic data has proven to be resilient as evidenced by on-going employment growth, with monthly non-farm payroll data above 200,000, demonstrating that the US labour market remains tight. The US debt ceiling negotiations did cause volatility on fears of a technical default. However, an agreement was reached in the Senate to suspend the debt ceiling and legislation was signed off by President Biden in early June.

Over the second quarter, sterling corporate bond credit spreads were broadly flat, which was a resilient performance given the volatility in government bond markets. Corporate bonds were supported by a strong new issue market and fund flows into the asset class, given the attractive all-in yield levels.

Trading Activity and Performance

Sub-Fund activity was fairly muted. In terms of disposals, we exited positions in Medical Properties and Aroundtown. We did not favour the management stance following some negative headlines and poor market sentiment for the sector, which, coupled with deterioration in their credit metrics, led us to dispose of our holdings in these two names.

In terms of new deals, we participated in a new issue from Prologis, a highly rated logistics company that offered an attractive new issue premium. We then participated in a new issue from National Westminster Bank, which came with an attractive yield and spread pick up relative to existing bonds. The company rates highly from a sustainability perspective, given it is predominantly a retail bank with a focus on mortgage and SME lending with limited exposure to investment banking. The company also has robust underlying credit fundamentals, given it is well-capitalised, retains high asset quality and improving profitability in a higher interest rate environment. The new issue was funded by the proceeds from the call announcement in our HSBC discounted ('disco') bonds.

Our overweight position to financials proved to be a strong contributor, as both our banks and insurance holdings performed well, benefitting from improved sentiment as fears of weakness in the banking sector subsided as contagion risks did not materialise. Our holdings across high quality European names continue to benefit from improving net interest margins in a higher rate environment, alongside well-capitalised balance sheets and robust asset quality, resulting in credit ratings remaining stable to improving across the names held. We believe these companies are well positioned against potential further weakness in sentiment and to capture a potential recovery.

Within the bank sector, the biggest contribution to the Sub-Fund's credit performance was the early call announcement of the HSBC legacy disco bonds. The company announced that they would call the bonds at par, which were trading at around 75 cents. The regulator has been pushing for action from banks in this space, with the bonds due to lose capital treatment in 2025 as well as the cessation of Libor in June 2023. This had a positive impact for Sub-Fund's other disco holding from BNP. Given HSBC represented around 45% of the market it has set a precedent that other issuers are expected to follow, which saw both Barclays and Standard Chartered also calling their discos during the quarter.

Our overweight to the insurance sector also performed well, with strong stock selection from our USD denominated subordinated holdings in AXA and Swiss Re that contributed positively.

While the REITs sector underperformed at the start of the year, it had recovered most of the ground by the end of June. The fear of US commercial real estate concerns spreading to Europe subsided gradually while recent results demonstrated companies' ability to pass through rental increases that somewhat offset valuation declines. Our exposure to more resilient sectors such as logistics fared well over the quarter, whereas offices continue to be under pressure, with a clear bifurcation between higher and lower quality space.

Outlook

There is a real risk that major European economies fall into recession in the coming months and consensus forecasts, while upgraded so far this year, are still for muted growth over the next few years as recent stronger-than-expected inflation data has resulted in markets pricing in further hikes. However, with the economic growth outlook anaemic and inflation likely to belatedly fall back towards the 2% target, we think the case for further rate hikes is limited.

The further rise in policy rates by central banks will take time to fully feed through and will have a material impact on financing, particularly for consumers as a larger proportion of fixed rate mortgages expire adding further pressure to already existing signs of strain. As the effects of cumulative hikes feeds through, we expect base rates will peak soon as economic activity begins to slow.

However, we anticipate further volatility throughout this year as the bond market is currently particularly focused on short-term patterns in macroeconomic data, such as inflation prints, as it tries to predict the peak in base rates.

Despite the building economic headwinds, corporate fundamentals remain incredibly healthy. Borrowing remains well below long-run averages, while interest coverage is significantly higher than historical levels and still high cash-to-debt levels also emphasize balance sheet strength.

While these metrics have already started to deteriorate – and will continue to do so – the average corporate is well placed to withstand the anticipated period of economic weakness given the historically strong starting point for company balance sheets.

The increase in yields, alongside widening of corporate bond spreads, has made the total yield on corporate bonds very attractive. Investment grade sterling bonds are now yielding levels not seen since the global financial crisis.

We continue to argue that corporate bonds remain very attractive from a total return perspective, with short-term mispricing providing an opportunity, with yields close to peaking coupled with strong fundamentals and attractive valuations.

Liontrust GF High Yield Bond Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2023

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Sub-Fund Review

The Sub-Fund Class (C5 Accumulating Sterling (Hedged)) returned 5.1%* in sterling terms in the six months to 30 June 2023 while the ICE Bank of America Merrill Lynch Global High Yield Index (GBP hedged) comparator benchmark returned 4.3% and the average return for the IA Sterling High Yield reference sector was 3.8%. The primary B5 US dollar share class returned 5.5% while the ICE Bank of America Merrill Lynch Global High Yield Index (USD hedged) comparator benchmark returned 4.9% and the average return for the EAA Fund USD High Yield Bond (Morningstar) reference sector was 4.0%.

We also compare the Sub-Fund's performance to a leading Global High Yield ETF (seeking to outperform by 1.5% a year)[†]. The Sub-Fund's Class C5 Accumulating Sterling (hedged) return outperformed the ETF in the first half of 2023, and has now outperformed by 1.8 percentage points since inception (June 2018).

Unlike a year ago, high yield in general was fairly sheltered from rising government bond yields in the first half of 2023. That said, in a hark back to 2022, the US market saw lower quality bonds outperform higher quality bonds across the period. Meanwhile, the European high yield market saw the opposite, where better quality credits outperformed lower quality ones.

Overall, credit spreads have been supported by the stall in primary market issuance, with issuers shelving deals until a more suitable market environment presents itself. The high yield market doesn't have a looming maturity wall to address as many issuers have refinanced and will only start to have more meaningful debt maturities to address from 2025 onwards.

While mixed as always, corporate earnings were fairly robust. Some companies have mentioned that customer destocking is impacting performance where customers have prudently increased inventory levels on the back of a period of experiencing supply chain issues. Others are confident they can successfully navigate through the inflationary environment with cost pass through features in customer contracts.

On the whole, corporate balance sheets are in good shape, liquidity is good and default rates are increasing but from a very low level.

Relative to index, the best performing sectors in the Sub-Fund in the first half of 2023 were capital goods, financial services and telecommunications.

Strong contributors to stock picking include Ardagh (a packaging company), Profine (a PVC window frame manufacturer), Paymentsense (a UK-based fintech payment processing company), Loxam (an equipment rental business) and Klockner Pentaplast (a packaging company). The Klockner Pentaplast bonds had risen sharply on the back of news of an equity injection by shareholders, indicating support for the credit.

Areas where our relative underweight position was a drag to performance included more cyclical sectors, such as leisure, retail and energy. This shouldn't come as a surprise as the Sub-Fund has a bias towards less cyclical defensive credits. The long-rumoured takeover of the Sub-Fund's only energy holding – Neptune Energy – is finally happening, and is expected to complete Q1 2024 with bonds to be called sometime between July and then.

Looking at some of the new issues we participated in, quite a few of the issuers were paying up to access the bond market, some issuing secured debt over unsecured debt. It is clear that higher quality credits are gaining better access to the bond market compared with lower quality ones, a reflection of risk appetite and also the ability/willingness of issuers to take on a higher interest cost burden. In general, use of proceeds has been more for refinancing, with the US market more active than Europe.

The Sub-Fund has been gradually reducing risk ahead of any market wobbles and – to stand in good shape ahead of entering a recessionary environment – we participated in a few primary deals that offered good value and rightsized some exposure across rating buckets. In the banking sector, tier 2 capital bonds, a more defensive exposure than AT1, bonds were purchased in GBP in both Swedbank and BBVA – spreads of over 300bps for these quality issuers look very attractive compared to some BB high yield issuers. Given banking can be a very homogenous (or thematic) sector, we have kept the Sub-Fund's overall weighting low at 6.5% in line with our investment philosophy of diversifying credit risks.

One of the new issues the Sub-Fund participated in 3i, which is a UK-based mid-market private equity and infrastructure company. 3i is an extremely solid credit investment, with a very healthy balance sheet, tried and tested investment process and good access to capital. The six-year bonds, rated Baa1, issued in June 2023, were an absolute steal at B+280bps, making the bonds not only cheap to investment grade, but also to many BB rated bonds too.

Another new issue came from existing holding TransDigm, a manufacturer of engineered aerospace components for commercial airlines, aircraft maintenance facilities, original equipment manufacturers and various agencies of the US government. We particularly like the strong margins of the business and positive free cash flow generation. The new issue is higher up the capital structure; a US dollar-denominated bond rated Ba3/B+ with a 6.75% coupon.

We participated in IPD, which is a leading European B2B information provider focusing on industry-specific information platforms. It is a well-established company which has the support of its private equity sponsors, TowerBrook, to grow the business. The company is growing through M&A activity as well as organically. IPD benefits from a subscription-based model which gives it good visibility with high recurring sales. Financial performance has been good and fared well during softer economic environments. The deal was denominated in euros, rated B2/B/B+, secured notes with an 8% coupon.

CABB is primarily a contract development and manufacturing organisation (CDMO), supplying chemical ingredients, often customised, to customers in the crop science, life science and performance materials markets. There are various elements to CABB's business model that make it an attractive credit. The key points are customer stickiness, structural growth in crop science and an ability to make money from waste products. The bonds were issued in euro, rated B3/B, secured, and the notes came with a 8.75% coupon.

Outlook

We have built up a bit of liquidity in the Sub-Fund, so we are able to take advantage of any stock opportunities should market volatility occur over the summer. However, we have measures in place to reduce the drag that comes from holding cash, particularly in a higher yield environment. For example, rather than just leave that liquidity in cash, we have bought a 7-month maturity US Treasury yielding 5.4% (a hangover from the debt ceiling and overhang from the T Bill deluge) and put in place a long risk CDS index overlay for the same weighting (selling default protection on the CDX HY index) at a spread of about 4.7%. Combined this offers a 10% yield, a pretty good carry.

A natural market implication of increased yields is a gradual re-couponing of debt as issuers refinance their liabilities. As old low-coupon debt gradually matures over the coming months and years, companies will have to pay a much higher coupon, commensurate with today's market yield levels, to attract capital. The downside to this is a deterioration in interest coverage ratios and free cash flow for the companies, which is another reason why we avoid those issuers with the most fragile balance sheets. The upside is that bond investors receive a significant boost to the running yield from the higher coupons and that lifts future expected returns from the asset class. We believe our bias towards better quality, less cyclical credits should benefit in this market environment and going forward into a potential mild recessionary period towards the latter part of the year. The Sub-Fund is currently offering a yield of over 10% for sterling investors (over 8% in euros), which we view as an attractive entry point for investors.

Liontrust GF Absolute Return Bond Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2023

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund Class C5 Accumulating Sterling (Hedged) returned 1.8%* in sterling terms in the six months to 30 June 2023 and the IA Targeted Absolute Return, the Sub-Fund's reference sector, returned 0.1%. The Sub-Fund's primary US dollar share class (B5) returned 2.3%.

The positive return was driven by the yield carry on the Sub-Fund, which more than offset the drag from the rise in sovereign bond yields. Credit also contributed positively, a combination of the broad credit market exhibiting a little spread tightening and some stock specific situations.

The start of 2023 witnessed a strong rally in fixed income assets as premature hopes for a turning point in the monetary tightening cycle were reflected in market prices. It soon transpired that bond markets had become too sanguine about the inflationary outlook, attempting yet again to price in a "dovish pivot" by central banks. The prevailing themes then became stronger economic data and the need for higher terminal interest rates in order to conquer inflation.

In March, the markets' attention shifted to the failure of three banks, Silicon Valley Bank and Signature Bank in the US as well as Credit Suisse in Europe. The write-down of Credit Suisse's Additional Tier 1 (AT1) bonds to zero during the rescue takeover by UBS caused particular chagrin in some corners of the bond market.

Our view was that this was not a systemic crisis; the banks involved had all shot themselves in the foot in some way or other over the last few years, either completely mis-managing the duration of their assets (relative to their liabilities) or having a series of scandals that eroded stakeholder trust.

Although legitimate market concerns remained about the asset quality of some US regional banks due to their exposure to commercial real estate lending, deposit flight from the system gradually slowed. Some of this deposit flight would have been motivated by fears of bank failure and deposit loss, but much of it was driven by investors seeking out yields at the front end of the bond market which now looked very attractive relative to deposit rates.

The tightening in lending standards and fall in economic sentiment following this banking 'mini crisis' did some of the Federal Reserve's (Fed) monetary tightening job for it. The Fed subsequently pushed through its second 25 basis point (bps) hike of the year, taking rates to a 4.75% to 5.0% range, but stopped short of raising its forecast level of terminal rates as many had expected.

With contagion from the US regional banking crisis contained, markets then moved on to their next main worry, the US debt ceiling. Ultimately, a last-minute bipartisan compromise between the Democrats and Republicans led to the suspension of the debt ceiling until January 2025.

Bond markets then refocused on economic fundamentals and the ongoing tightening cycle by central banks.

The latest meeting of the US Federal Reserve's rate-setting committee produced what we characterise as a hawkish pause in the monetary policy tightening cycle. The Fed funds rate was held steady at the 5.0% - 5.25% range, but both the accompanying statement and its economic projections were hawkish in nature. The committee members increased their projection for the end-2023 interest rate to 5.50 - 5.75%, up from the 5.00% - 5.25% forecast in March. However, bond markets didn't believe the projections would be met, and priced in a very low probability of two hikes occurring this year.

The European Central Bank (ECB) twice raised rates by 50bps in the first quarter of the year before slowing its pace of tightening to 25bps for two hikes in May and June, taking its deposit rate to 3.50%. The ECB is almost certain to raise rates in July, but there is debate amongst the members over whether a further rate hike is required in September.

In the UK, inflation data made very unpleasant reading with May data showing falling inflation in non-core items, food and energy, offset by stronger inflation in core goods and services. Headline UK consumer price inflation was unchanged on the month at 8.7% against expectations of a 0.3% reduction. Core CPI continued to rise, increasing by 0.3% to 7.1%.

This is very much seen as a domestic issue, driven by ongoing large nominal wage gains (real wages are still shrinking) and service sector corporates retaining sufficient pricing power to pass cost increases on. The UK's inflation problem has rotated into the services sectors of the economy; inflation here can be remedied if the central bank chooses to inflict sufficient pain on the economy.

The Bank of England (BoE), in response to this worrisome inflation data, surprised the market by hiking rates by 50bps to 5.0%. The market had only priced in about a 35% chance of a 50bps hike, while economists had hoped for 50bps but assumed 25bps.

We continue to believe that monetary policy has already overshoot to the upside in the UK, but base rates will go higher still. Having had the wrong approach during the Covid crisis and been very slow to take away the proverbial punchbowl, the BoE is now having to work hard to regain credibility. With the infamous long and variable lags of monetary policy, a large overshoot is inevitable in this monetary cycle, and we see very little chance of the UK avoiding a recession.

Carry Component

We split the Sub-Fund into the Carry Component and three Alpha Sources for clarity in reporting, but it is worth emphasising we manage the Sub-Fund's positioning and risk in its entirety. As a reminder, the Carry Component invests in investment grade bonds with <5 years to maturity. Within this there is a strong preference for investing in the more defensive sectors of the economy.

The Sub-Fund's positive return over the six months was mainly driven by the Carry Component, which more than offset the drag from the rise in sovereign bond yields.

Alpha Sources:

Rates

The Sub-Fund spent most of the six months with a duration in core bond markets of 2 years, above the neutral level of 1.5 years (as a reminder, the permitted range is 0-3 years). It ended the period with duration exposure split between 1.05 years in the US, 0.70 years in Europe and 0.25 years in the UK.

The emphasis above is on core duration; the Sub-Fund also had a 0.5 year short duration in Japan for part of the period. The Japanese Government Bond (JGB) market is much lower beta than other sovereign bond markets, partly due to the ongoing market manipulation by the Bank of Japan as part of its Yield Curve Control (YCC) policy. The JGB market has become dysfunctional so the YCC policy is no longer fit for purpose and we felt that the new Bank of Japan governor Ueda was likely to try to find a gradual exit. However, an April press conference suggested that this may take some time – a year or longer. We would argue that Japan has created economic conditions where inflation can sustainably meet the 2% target, but Ueda's opinion matters far more than ours and it looks like he will take his time before changing the YCC approach. We therefore decided to close out our short duration position in Japanese bond futures, which were offside in absolute terms but up in relative terms.

The Sub-Fund also established a curve steepener position in the US as we believed that the inversion of yields between 2-year and 10-year bonds had gone far. This position was first implemented in March, as 2-year yields exceeded 10-year yields by more than 1%. In the wake of the banking mini-crisis the curve steepened, allowing us to take profits on the position after a short time. However, the yield curve inversion returned to a 1% differential in June, so we implemented the steepener again with a duration-neutral position comprising a 0.25 year duration short in the 10-year future and 0.25 years long of the 2-year future. Excluding the period just before SVB failed in March, the last time the curve was this inverted was in the late 1970s/early 1980s.

Because the 10-year bond is naturally longer duration than the 2-year, the duration-neutral steepener position involves much higher notional fund exposure in the latter. Combined with the 2-year bond's higher yield, this means the position adds about 4 basis points to the Sub-Fund's yield each month.

Allocation

The weighting in the Carry Component has been in the mid to high 80's percentage area throughout the period due to the compelling yield on short-dated defensive investment grade bonds.

Within the constituent mix of Carry there was an asset allocation shift in June. For the first time in the Sub-Fund's 5-year history a reasonable exposure to short-dated sterling credit has been purchased. We switched out of euro-denominated credit into sterling and now have 7.2% in the latter. Both the underlying gilt yield and credit spreads on offer are attractive. Part of the reason for the higher credit spreads is an illiquidity premium, so we would not want to go above 15% - 20% in the Sub-Fund's sterling exposure. If there is further gilt underperformance, we would add another 0.25 years by switching out of dollar-denominated credit.

Selection

Selection was mixed over the period. Profits were taken in early February on some Credit Suisse senior bonds as we became more concerned about ongoing deposit outflows, but we did not expect such a rapid demise to occur. The holding in Castellum was trimmed after its very strong start to the year. Profits were also taken in Grifols bonds, and Zurich Insurance bonds performed reasonably well. A profits warning from Catalent caused us to reassess the fundamentals of the company, the position was sold at a loss during the period.

Credit spreads tightening within Carry provided the majority of the gains emanating from the spread category during the six months.

Outside of the asset allocation switch from euros into sterling Carry, stock level portfolio activity was relatively low over the period. There was a new addition to the Sub-Fund's investment grade Selection exposure in June - bonds issued by stock market stalwart, 3i. Although one of its portfolio holdings (Action) has become an outsized position for it, this is only due to its success. 3i's gearing is very low, and its long-term investment approach and diversity appeal to us. A spread of 278bps for a 6-year BBB+ rated bond is very attractive. This was funded by the proceeds from selling Vonovia's 2029 maturity bonds.

Two holdings were sold from Carry: firstly, a Hutchison Ports entity where our conviction on the business had reduced and the bonds had been less liquid than initially forecast; secondly, RWE, where a combination of strong bond performance and a new coal development (which downgraded our ESG view on the company) led to a sale. New purchases within Carry included Amgen, T-Mobile US, IBM, Conagra, BT Group and Aetna (part of CVS); the latter three all US dollar denominated with 2023 maturities.

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future Pan-European Growth Fund

Investment Adviser's Report

For the six months ended 30 June 2023

Past performance does not predict future returns.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund delivered a return of 6.4%* (Class A1 Accumulating (Euro) over the period in euro terms, versus the MSCI Europe Index's 11.1% (which is the comparator benchmark).

Across the portfolio, we continue to see strong progress in the underlying fundamentals of our companies. Businesses rarely improve in a linear fashion, and it requires a long-term perspective to separate short-term noise from fundamental changes. Despite the ongoing disruption caused by Covid-19 on demand and supply chains and interest rate shocks, we continue to focus resolutely on long-term progress and the companies that will help deliver positive change. Currently, market prices are not reflecting the growth and strong competitive positioning of our businesses, but we are excited about the long-term prospects of the Sub-Fund given this misappreciation.

We continue to manage our portfolios in alignment with these themes, which themselves sit within three broader categories of Better resource efficiency, Improved health and Greater safety and resilience.

Within Better resource efficiency, the growth of renewables is accelerating for a market that's estimated to be worth half a trillion dollars, while the advent of the war in Ukraine has shown how security of supply is another essential attribute of renewable energy.

Under Improved health, there has been dramatic innovation in the development of diagnostic tools to aid early diagnosis, cancer and other diseases through the advances that we've seen in gene sequencing. Finally, within Greater safety and resilience, with water quality making the headlines, our theme around better monitoring of supply chains and quality control is focused on companies which provide equipment and services that undertake the essential analysis of our water, air and food.

All these areas are important to solving key sustainability challenges and should also deliver growth that is relatively independent of overall economic growth. While 2022 was a tumultuous year for almost every asset class, we believe that the foundations for our key themes – Better resource efficiency; Improved health; and Greater safety and resilience – are stronger than ever.

Private equity company 3i Group was also among the top performers over the period after its full year results release in May was received well by the market – reporting net asset value per share that beat average estimates. Exposed to our theme of Increasing financial resilience, 3i's private equity business delivered a gross investment return of £5.0bn, or 40%, driven primarily by its position in non-food discounter Action, which recorded a very strong performance in FY2023. The strong returns were also aided by contributions from a number of its other portfolio companies operating in the value-for-money and private label, healthcare, industrial technology and business and technology services sectors.

Having struggled in 2022, we have been pleased with Spotify's performance year-to-date, with the company posting robust Q1 results and continuing to strengthen in the second quarter. We have felt the market has somewhat misunderstood the company, namely around the key metrics that we believe are important for Spotify – specifically, user and subscriber growth. Spotify has been growing these metrics strongly, reporting monthly active user net additions of 26 million in Q1, which was 15 million ahead of guidance. In addition, the company reported that premium subscribers grew 15% year-on-year to 210 million, again above previous guidance. Looking forward, Spotify reported that it sees premium subscribers increasing to 217 million in the second quarter of this year, with monthly active users expected to grow by 15 million to 530 million.

Spotify fits perfectly into our Encouraging sustainable leisure theme as we believe music has been an important component of leisure time and culture for millennia. Listening to music is a fundamentally positive pastime and is key to the human experience; it brings people together and can also be enjoyed alone.

Semiconductor firm ASML was another notable performer as strong sub-sector performance combined with a robust earnings release to push the company's share price higher. ASML remains at the forefront of improving semiconductor fabrication through extreme ultraviolet (EUV) development and holistic lithography. Smaller process nodes means more chips per wafer in manufacture and smaller, cheaper, more reliable, more energy efficient and more powerful end products. The company reported net sales in the fourth quarter of €6.4 billion, which was around the midpoint of the company's guidance, while gross margin exceeded previous guidance due to additional upgrades and an insurance settlement from last year.

IT consultant Nagarro, which is held under our Improving the resource efficiency of industrial and agricultural processes theme, fell sharply after cutting its estimate for 2023 revenue, not including acquisitions made in 2023, from €1,020 million to around €940 million. Nagarro has seen a sharp slowdown in demand particularly among its clients in the financial sector following the fallout from the collapse of SVB and Credit Suisse earlier in the year.

Befesa was also among the detractors over the period as the German waste recycling firm fell after issuing guidance that was below expectations. Exposed to our Delivering a circular materials economy theme, Befesa is involved in taking the hazardous dust by-products of metal sheltering and treating and recycling it to form metals which it sells. Their business helps reduce the negative impacts and treat the hazardous waste from metal processing and recycle this back into use.

Shares in bioprocessing equipment and consumables manufacturer Sartorius Stedim fell after lowering its full-year sales guidance, citing longer-than-expected inventory reduction among biopharma customers following the Covid-19 pandemic. Held under our Enabling innovation in healthcare theme, Sartorius Stedim provides all the equipment and consumables used in biologic drug development and manufacturing. Currently around one third of drugs are considered "biologic" including gene and cell therapies, but these therapies are set to dominate the market over the next decade with more effective and targeted treatments. While we are disappointed in the short-term performance, we remain confident in the long-term prospects.

In terms of portfolio activity, a new position in the Sub-Fund under our improving the resource efficiency of industrial and agricultural processes theme is AutoStore, the market leader in "cubic" automated storage and retrieval systems (AS/RS) for warehouses. Over the past 25 years AutoStore has developed compact design to store and retrieve products in warehouses in a simple Rubik's cube design. The system uses autonomous robots moving on top of an aluminium grid to store and retrieve bins and deliver products to port stations for packing and transport.

Compared to a manual warehouse, the AutoStore system can save up to 75% of space by removing all the space between storage boxes and packing the items densely together. This helps to reduce the cost of rent and energy costs in terms of heating/cooling and lighting (as the robots don't require heat or light).

We added contract development and manufacturing organisation Lonza under our providing affordable healthcare theme. Lonza is a global integrated solutions provider for the healthcare industry, offering outsourcing scale and efficiencies to the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industries in the areas of therapy development and manufacturing.

Global information services company Experian was added under our Increasing financial resilience theme. The world's largest consumer credit bureau, Experian plays a critical role financial stability through the provision of transparent and accurate credit information. Experian has also developed a number of free tools on the consumer side of the business aimed at improving financial inclusion and credit scores – Experian Boost and Experian Go – helping people establish a credit identity and improve their score, all free of charge.

We also initiated a position in live event ticketing company CTS Eventim under our Encouraging sustainable leisure theme. The company operates an online booking system that allows event promoters to sell their tickets to millions of fans. As part of our theme, we believe this is socially positive form of consumption.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund returned 14.1%* (Class B5 Accumulating US Dollar) in dollar terms in the period under review, versus the 15.1% return from the MSCI World Index (which is the comparator benchmark).

Across the portfolios, we continue to concentrate on where we have expertise and confidence in our predictions, namely the 20 sustainable themes that identify companies set to benefit making our world cleaner, healthier and safer. We continue to manage our portfolios in alignment with the themes, which themselves sit within three broader categories of Better resource efficiency, Improved health and Greater safety and resilience.

Within Better resource efficiency, the growth of renewables is accelerating for a market that's estimated to be worth half a trillion dollars, while the war in Ukraine has shown how security of supply is another essential attribute of renewable energy.

Having struggled in 2022, we have been pleased with Spotify's performance year-to-date, with the company posting robust Q1 results and continuing to strengthen in the second quarter. Listening to music is a fundamentally positive pastime and is key to the human experience; it brings people together and can also be enjoyed alone.

Cadence Design Systems has also been a notable strong performer year to date, and has also been a standout performer in the Sub-Fund over the last few years. Cadence provides electronic design automation (EDA), technology that designs and optimises semiconductor chips. Its technology facilitates innovation behind many of our themes related to the digitalisation of the global economy.

Held under our Improving the efficiency of energy use theme, Cadence has done well to move beyond its core customer base, which has traditionally been the semiconductor manufacturers, broadening its customers to Google, Microsoft and Tesla. These companies want to design their own chips and, in order to do this, you need to have the software that Cadence provides. Furthermore, as we move into a new era of artificial intelligence coupled with the excitement surrounding ChatGPT, the backbone of this technological shift is stronger and more powerful chips; once again, Cadence's offering is vital in achieving this.

Cybersecurity company Palo Alto Networks was another strong performer, reporting third-quarter results that beat average estimates, while also raising the lower end of its full-year revenue forecast. Exposed to our theme of Enabling digital security, Palo Alto provides cyber security solutions for over 85,000 organisations. Almost every facet of our lives has some online exposure, whether personal information, finances, commercial interactions and simple communications. The same is true for businesses, governments and international institutions. Keeping this information secure and only accessible by the right people is essential for retaining trust in all these on-line interactions.

Palo Alto's strategy is to build on the leading firewall product and move to subscription-based firewall and security as a service. This is increasingly based on consumption of data, meaning the market for security solutions will grow as data increases and more of this data is shifted into the cloud.

In terms of detractors over the period, the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank (SVB) in March (the second largest banking failure in US history) led to a major sell-off in the US and European financial sectors and a few of our holdings were impacted by the subsequent contagion. Banks in 2023 are very different to those in 2008 – they are better capitalised, better regulated and tend to have more diversified sources of funding. For the SF funds we look to invest in only those banks which demonstrate strong Financial Resilience – we did not invest in SVB in any of our Funds.

We note though that First Republic, which we did hold, has seen its shares impacted. First Republic started the year with a stronger credit rating than JP Morgan, and was the envy of the US banking sector. Unfortunately it was swept up in the turmoil associated with SVB, given its deposit base was primarily in the San Francisco bay area, as was SVB's. Panic ensued as reports of the collapse of SVB hit the news, which saw First Republic's deposit base fall from $155bn to around $70bn over a few days. While the solvency of First Republic was sound, the sharp fall in its deposit base led to higher funding costs, and hurt profitability. We exited the position over the first quarter.

Exposed to our Saving for the future theme, Charles Schwab was another one of our positions to be negatively impacted by concerns around the collapse of SVB. Shares in the US investment firm fell amid a crisis of confidence in the banking sector with these concerns being further amplified after UBS announced that it was to buy out struggling Swiss lender Credit Suisse.

The market turbulence following the SVB collapse serves as an important reminder of how vital it is to invest in companies with strong balance sheets and good business models; and also to have good diversification across portfolios. Both are key features of the Sustainable Future approach.

Away from the banking sector, our position in Agilent Technologies – a leading provider of instruments, software, services, and consumables for laboratories – was a notable detractor. Exposed to our Better monitoring of supply chains and quality control theme, Agilent's products help us ensure the air we breathe, the water we drink and the food we eat is not affected by dangerous impurities. It also has a growing diagnostics business which enables innovation in areas such as gene therapy. Over the period, the company's earnings forecast for the second quarter came in below average estimates.

Portfolio activity was limited over the first half. Having exited First Republic, we initiated a position in Morningstar under our Saving for the future theme. Morningstar provides both quantitative and qualitative research to the investment industry, with databases and analytical tools covering private markets, ESG, credit ratings, equity valuation, and more. On the client side, they provide software and investment management services to financial advisors and institutions.

We also added multinational plumbing and heating products distributor Ferguson, under our Building better cities theme. Sanitation is an area of sustainable development which offers a huge opportunity to improve over the coming decades. Clean water, decent toilets and good hygiene are basic human rights, and these also interact with other goals such as education, reducing inequalities and climate action.

We sold our position in Puma. The recent departure of the CEO to a competitor was disappointing, given we rated his strategy and leadership highly. We had also hoped the sales of products directly related to wellness and exercise would outgrow the fashion-focused sales, which would have increased the thematic exposure, and seen an upgrade from C to B in terms of the product rating. This mix shift did not eventuate, as sportswear sales had disappointed. We therefore decided to exit the position.

We also sold Intertek. We have become increasingly concerned that the “reshoring” phenomena is a headwind for growth and margins for Intertek. As production is incrementally brought back to home shores, particularly in the US, the level of complexity in terms of supply chain auditing also falls, which we feel may negatively affect the long-term earnings and returns profile of Intertek.

Market Review

The Sub-Fund returned 5.3%* (class A5 Accumulating Euro) in euros over the period under review, versus 7.2% from the comparator benchmark, which is a blend of 50% MSCI World, 35% Markit iBoxx EUR Overall and 15% ESTER.

Across the portfolios, we continue to concentrate on where we have expertise and confidence in our predictions, namely the 20 sustainable themes that identify companies set to benefit making our world cleaner, healthier and safer. We continue to manage our portfolios in alignment with the themes, which themselves sit within three broader categories of Better resource efficiency, Improved health and Greater safety and resilience.

Within better resource efficiency, the growth of renewables is accelerating for a market that's estimated to be worth half a trillion dollars, while the advent of the war in Ukraine has shown how security of supply is another essential attribute of renewable energy.

Under Improved health, there has been dramatic innovation in the development of diagnostic tools to aid early diagnosis, cancer and other diseases through the advances that we've seen in gene sequencing. Finally, within Greater safety and resilience, with water quality making the headlines, our theme around better monitoring of supply chains and quality control is focused on companies which provide equipment and services that undertake the essential analysis of our water, air and food.

All these areas are important to solving key sustainability challenges and should also deliver growth that is relatively independent of overall economic growth. While 2022 was a tumultuous year for almost every asset class, we believe that the foundations for our key themes – Better resource efficiency; Improved health; and Greater safety and resilience – are stronger than ever.

From an asset allocation perspective, we base our positioning on our views of economic conditions, risk and the likely returns from each asset class. Given where we are in the economic cycle, we maintain our overweight position in corporate bonds, which we feel can achieve good returns with relatively low risk.

On UK and global equities, we remain neutral. While we are positive on the returns from equities, the uncertainty of economic trajectory, and the associated volatility with that, holds us back from being overweight the asset class at this stage. Otherwise, we have reduced our overweight to infrastructure, recently taking profits from the strong performance from electricity generators, and we have moved to an underweight cash position, trimming down this asset class in order to help narrow the underweight that we have had to gilts.

Having struggled in 2022, we have been pleased with Spotify's performance year-to-date, with the company posting a robust Q1 results release and continuing to strengthen in the second quarter. We have felt the market has somewhat misunderstood the company, namely around the key metrics that we believe are important for Spotify – specifically, user and subscriber growth. Spotify has been growing these metrics strongly, reporting monthly active user net additions of 26 million in Q1, which was 15 million ahead of guidance. In addition, the company reported that premium subscribers grew 15% year-on-year to 210 million, again above previous guidance. Looking forward, Spotify reported that it sees premium subscribers increasing to 217 million in the second quarter of this year, with monthly active users expected to grow by 15 million to 530 million.

Spotify fits perfectly into our Encouraging sustainable leisure theme as we believe music has been an important component of leisure time and culture for millennia. Listening to music is a fundamentally positive pastime and is key to the human experience; it brings people together and can also be enjoyed alone.

Cadence Design Systems has also been a notable strong performer year to date, and has also been a standout performer in the Sub-Fund over the last few years. Cadence provides electronic design automation (EDA), technology that designs and optimises semiconductor chips. Its technology facilitates innovation behind many of our themes related to the digitalisation of the global economy.

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future Multi Asset Global Fund Investment Adviser's Report (Continued)

Held under our Improving the efficiency of energy use theme, Cadence has done well to move beyond its core customer base, which has traditionally been the semiconductor manufacturers, broadening its customers to Google, Microsoft and Tesla. These companies want to design their own chips and, in order to do this, you need to have the software that Cadence provides. Furthermore, as we move into a new era of artificial intelligence coupled with the excitement surrounding ChatGPT, the backbone of this technological shift is stronger and more powerful chips; once again, Cadence's offering is vital in achieving this.

Cybersecurity company Palo Alto Networks was another strong performer, reporting third-quarter results that beat average estimates, while also raising the lower end of its full-year revenue forecast. Exposed to our theme of Enabling digital security, Palo Alto provides cyber security solutions for over 85,000 organisations. Almost every facet of our lives has some online exposure, whether personal information, finances, commercial interactions and simple communications. The same is true for businesses, governments and international institutions. Keeping this information secure and only accessible by the right people is essential for retaining trust in all these on-line interactions.

Palo Alto's strategy is to build on the leading firewall product and move to subscription-based firewall and security as a service. This is increasingly based on consumption of data, meaning the market for security solutions will grow as data increases and more of this data is shifted into the cloud.

In terms of detractors over the period, the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank (SVB) in March (the second largest banking failure in US history) led to a major sell-off in the US and European financial sectors and a few of our holdings were impacted by the subsequent contagion. Banks in 2023 are very different to those in 2008 – they are better capitalised, better regulated and tend to have more diversified sources of funding. For the SF funds we look to invest in only those banks which demonstrate strong Financial Resilience – we did not invest in SVB in any of our Funds.

We note though that First Republic, which we did hold, has seen its shares impacted. First Republic started the year with a stronger credit rating than JP Morgan, and was the envy of the US banking sector. Unfortunately it was swept up in the turmoil associated with Silicon Valley Bank, given its deposit base was primarily in the San Francisco bay area, as was SVB's. Panic ensued as reports of the collapse of SVB hit the news, which saw First Republic's deposit base fall from $155bn to around $70bn over a few days. While the solvency of First Republic was sound, the sharp fall in its deposit base led to higher funding costs, and hurt profitability. We exited the position in the first quarter.

Exposed to our Saving for the future theme, Charles Schwab was another one of our positions to be negatively impacted by concerns around the collapse of SVB. Shares in the US investment firm fell amid a crisis of confidence in the banking sector with these concerns being further amplified after UBS announced that it was to buy out struggling Swiss lender Credit Suisse.

The market turbulence following the SVB collapse serves as an important reminder of how vital it is to invest in companies with strong balance sheets and good business models; and also to have good diversification across portfolios. Both are key features of the Sustainable Future approach.

Away from the banking sector, our position in Agilent Technologies – a leading provider of instruments, software, services, and consumables for laboratories – was a notable detractor. Exposed to our Better monitoring of supply chains and quality control theme, Agilent's products help us ensure the air we breathe, the water we drink and the food we eat is not affected by dangerous impurities. It also has a growing diagnostics business which enables innovation in areas such as gene therapy. Over the period, the company's earnings forecast for the second quarter came in below average estimates.

In terms of portfolio activity, having exited First Republic, we initiated a position in Morningstar under our Saving for the future theme. Morningstar provides both quantitative and qualitative research to the investment industry, with databases and analytical tools covering private markets, ESG, credit ratings, equity valuation, and more. On the client side, they provide software and investment management services to financial advisors and institutions.

We also initiated a new position in multinational plumbing and heating products distributor Ferguson, under our Building better cities theme. Sanitation is an area of sustainable development which offers a huge opportunity to improve over the coming decades. Clean water, decent toilets and good hygiene are basic human rights, and these also interact with other goals such as education, reducing inequalities and climate action.

The recent departure of the CEO to a competitor was disappointing, given we rated his strategy and leadership highly. We had also hoped the sales of products directly related to wellness and exercise would outgrow the fashion-focused sales, which would have increased the thematic exposure, and seen an upgrade from C to B in terms of the product rating. This mix shift did not eventuate, as sportswear sales had disappointed. We therefore decided to exit the position.

We also sold Intertek. We have become increasingly concerned that the “reshoring” phenomena is a headwind for growth and margins for Intertek. As production is incrementally brought back to home shores, particularly in the US, the level of complexity in terms of supply chain auditing also falls, which we feel may negatively affect the long-term earnings and returns profile of Intertek.

2. Accounting Policies

The principal accounting policies applied in the preparation of these financial statements are set out below.

Basis of Preparation

In preparing the unaudited condensed financial statements for the financial period ended 30 June 2023, the Company has applied Financial Reporting Standard 104 "Interim Financial Reporting" ("FRS 104") and the Central Bank (Supervision and Enforcement) Act 2013 (Section 48(1)) (Undertakings for Collective Investment in Transferable Securities) Regulations 2019 (the "Central Bank UCITS Regulations") and these financial statements comply with these standards.

The accounting policies applied are consistent with those of the audited annual financial statements for the financial year ended 31 December 2022, as described in those financial statements.

The Directors have made an assessment of the Company's ability to continue as a going concern and is satisfied that the Company has the resources to continue its business for the foreseeable future. Furthermore, the Directors are not aware of any material uncertainties that may cast significant doubt upon the Company's ability to continue as a going concern. Therefore, the financial statements continue to be prepared on a going concern basis.

Cash Flow Statement

The Company has availed of the exemption available to open-ended investment funds under Section 7 "Statement of Cash Flows" of FRS 102 not to prepare a cash flow statement on the basis that substantially all of the Company's investments are highly liquid and carried at fair value, and the Company provides a Statement of Changes in Net Assets Attributable to Holders of Redeemable Participating Shares.

Historical Cost Convention

The financial statements have been prepared under the historical cost convention as modified by the revaluation of financial assets and financial liabilities held at fair value through profit or loss.

6. Share Capital

The authorised share capital of the Company is €300,000, divided into 300,000 Management Shares of €1.00 each and 500,000,000,000 redeemable participating shares of no par value. The redeemable participating shares carry voting rights and are entitled to all dividends on the distributing share classes and all capital surplus rights. The rights attached to any class may, whether or not the Company is being wound up, be varied or abrogated with the consent in writing of the holders of three-fourths of the issued shares of that class, or with the sanction of a special resolution passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of the shares of the class. Every shareholder shall have one vote and every management shareholder shall have one vote in respect of all Management Shares. Management Shares do not entitle the holders to any dividend and on a winding-up entitle the holder to receive the amount paid up thereon but not otherwise to participate in the assets of the Company. The Company may from time to time by ordinary resolution increase its capital by such amount as the resolution shall prescribe. Further information on the rights, preferences and restrictions of each share class is available in the Prospectus.

The subscriber share capital does not form part of Shareholders' funds, and is disclosed in the financial statements by way of this note only. In the opinion of the Directors, this disclosure reflects the nature of the Company's business as an investment fund.

Share classes are either accumulating, distributing, hedged or unhedged and will attract different fee rates of expenses as detailed in Note 9 to the Financial Statements.

Proceeds from shares issued and payments for shares redeemed are reflected in local currency of the share class and include switches and transfers between share classes within the same Sub-Fund.

The movement in the number of redeemable participating shares was as follows:

15. Fixed Operating Fee

The Investment Adviser has implemented a fixed operating fee on the Sub-Funds, which includes inter alia, the fees and expenses of the Administrator, Depositary, sub-custodial fees and transaction charges, Directors and Auditors fees and expenses, and fees paid to the Investment Adviser for administrative and related expenses. The fixed operating fee is payable out of the Net Asset Value of the Sub-Fund attributable to each share class.

For the avoidance of doubt, the fixed operating fees as set out below apply when the assets of the Sub-Fund do not exceed £500 million.

Funds	Fixed Operating Fee
Liontrust GF European Strategic Equity Fund	0.25%
Liontrust GF Special Situations Fund ¹	0.20%
Liontrust GF UK Growth Fund	0.20%
Liontrust GF European Smaller Companies Fund	0.20%

Liontrust GF Sustainable Future Pan-European Growth Fund	0.20%
Liontrust GF Sustainable Future Global Growth Fund ⁵	0.12%
Liontrust GF Sustainable Future Multi Asset Global Fund ⁵	0.12%

¹ Fixed operating fee per annum for Classes C6 and C7 is 0.075%.

² Fixed operating fee per annum for Classes A10, B10 and C10 is 0.0625%.

³ Until 20 February 2023, the fixed operating fee per annum was 0.10%

⁴ Until 20 February 2023, the fixed operating fee per annum was 0.08%

⁵ Until 20 February 2023, the fixed operating fee per annum was 0.13%

The fixed operating fee shall accrue daily based on the prior day Net Asset Value of each share class and the fixed operating fee accrued during a calendar month shall be paid to the Investment Adviser out of the assets of the Sub-Fund on or as soon as is practicable after the last business day of that calendar month. The fixed operating fee will be calculated taking account of any discount to be applied based on the Net Asset Value of the Sub-Fund on the last business day of the previous month. In the event that the assets of the Sub-Fund exceed £500 million, in order to pass on any savings, which may be made through economies of scale, discounts will be applied to the fixed operating fee of all share classes of the Sub-Fund on a sliding scale basis.

Where an applicable threshold level of Net Asset Value is achieved by the Sub-Fund on the last business day of any month, the relevant discount will apply to the Sub-Fund in relation to the following month. The fixed operating fee is not currently subject to VAT, but in the event of value added tax (or any equivalent tax) being imposed this may be levied against the property of the Sub-Fund.

Each Sub-Fund paid the issue costs, charges and expenses (including the fees of the Legal Advisors), in relation to the preparation of the Prospectus, relevant Supplement and all other documents and matters relating to or concerning the issue and any other fees, charges and expenses on the creation and issue of shares. In the event that a listing was sought, the Sub-Fund paid the cost of obtaining and maintaining a listing of its shares on any stock exchange.

Soft Commissions

The Investment Adviser has a research policy governing how research used in the investment management of the Sub-Funds is sourced and paid for. All research is purchased directly by the Investment Adviser from its own resources and will not be recharged to the Sub-Funds. No payments for research are made out of commission paid to brokers on transaction payments (i.e. soft commission). The Investment Adviser may accept minor non-monetary benefits from those brokers which enhance the quality of its services and which do not prevent it from acting in the best interests of its clients and are specifically permitted under the relevant regulations. During the financial period, the Investment Adviser has executed trades with brokers from whom it receives research under the separate research agreements and these trades have been on an execution only basis with agreed execution only commission rates. The Investment Adviser has satisfied itself that it obtains best execution on behalf of the Sub-Funds and the brokerage rates are in line with customary institutional execution only brokerage rates.

UK Reporting Status

A number of share classes in the Sub-Funds have been accepted as reporting funds by the United Kingdom Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs ("UK HMRC") with the exception of Liontrust GF European Smaller Companies Fund. A number of share classes in each Sub-Fund report annually to the UK HMRC.
