What is this product?

This is a fund constituted in the form of a mutual fund. It is domiciled in Luxembourg and its home regulator is the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier ("CSSF").

Objectives and Investment Strategy

Objective

The Fund's objective is capital appreciation, measured in U.S. dollars.

Strategy

The Fund invests primarily (at least 70%) in equity securities of companies in the energy sector located in developed and emerging market countries. The Fund may also invest in debt instruments. The Fund may invest in companies it believes to have above average earnings growth potential compared to other companies (growth companies), in companies it believes are undervalued compared to their perceived worth (value companies), or in a combination of growth and value companies. The Fund may invest in companies of any size. The Fund may invest a relatively large percent of its assets in a small number of issuers.

The Fund may use derivatives for hedging, efficient portfolio management and/or investment purposes, including to increase or decrease exposure to a particular market, segment of the market, or security, to manage currency exposure or other characteristics of the Fund, or as alternatives to direct investments. Derivatives used for efficient portfolio management purposes are used where the Investment Manager believes such techniques will reduce overall risk of the portfolio, to reduce tax impact or costs of investing in eligible securities, to more efficiently or effectively gain access to eligible assets or to generate additional capital or income, providing that the portfolio's risk levels remain consistent.

Notwithstanding the disclosure in the Prospectus, the Fund will not extensively or primarily use derivatives to achieve the Fund's investment objective or for investment purposes. The primary types of derivatives expected to be used by the Fund under normal market conditions include forward contracts and options.

What are the key risks?

Investment involves risks. Please refer to the offering document for details including the risk factors.

- Stock Market/Company Risk

Stock markets are volatile and can decline significantly in response to issuer, market, economic, industry, political, regulatory, geopolitical, and other conditions, as well as to investor perceptions of these conditions. The price of an equity security can decrease significantly in response to these conditions, and these conditions can affect a single issuer or type of security, issuers within a broad market sector, industry or geographic region, or the market in general.

- Credit Risk

The price of a debt instrument depends, in part, on the credit quality of the issuer, borrower, counterparty, or underlying collateral and can decline in response to changes in the financial condition of the issuer, borrower, counterparty, or underlying collateral, or changes in specific or general market, economic, industry, political, regulatory, geopolitical, or other conditions. To the extent an investment grade debt instrument is downgraded, such instrument can involve a substantially greater risk of default or may already be in default, which can cause the value of such instrument to significantly decline and losses to the fund.

- Interest Rate Risk

The price of a debt instrument falls when interest rates rise and rises when interest rates fall. Instruments with longer maturities, or that do not pay current interest, are more sensitive to interest rate changes.

- Energy Sector Risk

The Fund's performance will be closely tied to performance of the energy sector and, as a result, can be more volatile than the performance of more broadly-diversified funds. The price of stocks in the energy sector can be volatile due to the supply and/or demand for energy, financing costs, conservation efforts, the negative impact on regulations, and other factors.

- Issuer Focus Risk

Because the Fund may invest a relatively large percentage of its assets in a small number of issuers, the Fund's performance could be closely tied to such issuers, and could be more volatile than the performance of more diversified funds.

- Emerging Markets Risk

Exposure to emerging markets can involve additional risks relating to market, economic, political, regulatory, geopolitical, or other conditions. These factors can make emerging markets investments more volatile and less liquid than developed markets investments. Emerging markets can have less developed markets and less developed legal, regulatory, and accounting systems, and greater political, social, and economic instability than developed markets.

- Derivatives Risk

Derivatives can be used to take both long and synthetic short positions (i.e., the value of a derivative can be positively or negatively related to the value of the underlying indicator(s) on which the derivative is based). Derivatives can be highly volatile and involve risks in addition to the risks of the underlying indicator(s). Gains or losses from derivatives can be substantially greater than the derivatives' original cost and can involve leverage, and in adverse situations may result in significant or total loss.

• Currency Risk

Currency rates fluctuate in response to market, economic, political, regulatory, geopolitical, or other conditions. Because a Fund can invest in instruments issued in currencies other than the Fund's base currency or share class currency, changes in currency rates can affect the value of such instrument and the value of your investment. Investors whose assets and liabilities are primarily denominated in currencies other than the base currency of the Fund (USD) or the currency of the class in which the investment is made should take into account the potential risk of loss arising from the fluctuations in the rate of exchange between such currencies.

The Fund's NAV is available at mfs.com and is published at least once a month (normally, daily) in the South China Morning Post and the Hong Kong Economic Journal.
