 - also in securities of non-US issuers located in other jurisdictions worldwide, as well as in American depository receipts traded in the United States, investment funds which invest in non-US securities, and securities traded outside the United States;
 - with an expectation of a multi-quarter or multi-year holding period, in companies that the investment manager believes to be undervalued;
- by using derivatives, seek negative exposure to companies that it believes to be overvalued.

The Sub-Fund may:

- invest in fixed income securities, convertible securities, preferred stocks, warrants and rights and different types of derivatives and money market instruments;

- on an ancillary basis, invest in options (including U.S. listed options) on individual equities and exchange traded funds;

- hold cash.

Risk and Reward Profile

Why is this Fund in this Category?

The Sub-Fund is in the category 6 as it mostly invests in shares and similar instruments which typically experience higher levels of price fluctuations than fixed income securities.

Risk Disclaimer

This risk profile is based on simulated historical data and may not be a reliable indication of the future risk profile of the Sub-Fund.

The risk category shown is not guaranteed to remain unchanged and may shift over time.

The lowest category does not mean risk free investment.

Are there any other particular Risks?

- Liquidity risk – the risk stemming from the lack of marketability of an investment that cannot be bought or sold quickly enough to prevent or minimize a loss.

- Counterparty risk – the Sub-Fund will enter into derivatives contracts with one or more counterparties. If a counterparty fails to make payments (for example, it becomes insolvent), this may result in your investment suffering a loss.
- Operational risk – the risk of material losses to the Sub-Fund resulting from human error, system failures, inadequate procedures or internal management controls.
- Derivative instruments – a careful use of derivatives can be beneficial to the Sub-Fund but also implies additional risks which are different from the ones related to the underlying. Derivatives may be used to obtain, increase or reduce exposure to underlying assets and may create leverage. Leverage occurs when the economic exposure created by the use of derivatives is greater than the amount invested. Such leverage may result in greater fluctuations of the net asset value of the Sub-Fund and therefore entails a high degree of risk, including the risk that losses may be substantial.

For more details about risks, see section "Risk factors and conflicts of interest" of the prospectus.
