Fund Manager's Comments

The portfolio returned -0.4% (USD I Dist Share Class) in July versus 1.3% for the Fund's benchmark, the NASDAQ Biotechnology Net Total Return Index (NBI), for a relative underperformance of -1.7% (all figures in dollar terms).

Sector review

The biotechnology sector underperformed the broader market, with the S&P 500 Total Return Index up 3.2% (in dollar terms). While the biotechnology sector kept pace with the broader market, melting higher for most of the month, the final week saw notable de-grossing activity (the process of buying back short positions while selling down long positions) by the long-short hedge fund community. This adversely affected the relative performance of the sector, particularly where the major benchmark indices (as well as long-only global strategies) typically reflect the higher quality/less speculative equity stories in the space. A major setback to a high-profile biotechnology product launch story, with Apellis Pharmaceuticals confirming reports of a handful of serious rare side-effects in patients recently receiving injections of their newly launched medicine Syfovre to treat progressive vision impairment, caught many investors (including ourselves) offside, and for the Fund this situation represented a material driver of relative underperformance over the month.

Outlook

With specialist investors struggling to find strong product cycle stories among the larger commercial-stage companies and experiencing continued performance frustration from owning the higher quality mid-sized revenue growth and clinical development-stage companies, combined with wonky or wrong-way positioning around clinical newsflow and M&A situations, previously firming investor sentiment towards the space seems to have evaporated through the early summer period. Indeed, the de-grossing activity into month end indicates a degree of short-term capitulation from the dedicated investment community. This widespread frustration (again, including from ourselves) stands in stark contrast to the fundamentals for the sector that continue to improve. R&D productivity remains high (clinical trial newsflow on balance seems to be trending positively and calendar YTD 29 new medicines have been approved by the FDA); management operating performance reports for the second quarter, as well as guidance for the remainder of the year, are largely meeting investor expectations; and M&A activity continues at a brisk pace. This keeps us confident that while broader equity markets continue to be focused elsewhere (with growing expectations for a soft landing with respect to the economic outlook as the Federal Reserve's rate tightening cycle looks to be coming to an end), the fundamental building blocks for value creation can drive better relative performance for the sector through the seasonally stronger period into calendar year-end.

Morningstar Medalist Rating The Morningstar Medalist Rating™ is the summary expression of Morningstar's forward-looking analysis of investment strategies as offered via specific vehicles using a rating scale of Gold, Silver, Bronze, Neutral, and Negative. The Medalist Ratings indicate which investments Morningstar believes are likely to outperform a relevant index or peer group average on a risk-adjusted basis over time. Investment products are evaluated on three key pillars (People, Parent, and Process) which, when coupled with a fee assessment, forms the basis for Morningstar's conviction in those products' investment merits and determines the Medalist Rating they're assigned. Pillar ratings take the form of Low, Below Average, Average, Above Average, and High. Pillars may be evaluated via an analyst's qualitative assessment (either directly to a vehicle the analyst covers or indirectly when the pillar ratings of a covered vehicle are mapped to a related uncovered vehicle) or using algorithmic techniques. Vehicles are sorted by their expected performance into rating groups defined by their Morningstar Category and their active or passive status. When analysts directly cover a vehicle, they assign the three pillar ratings based on their qualitative assessment, subject to the oversight of the Analyst Rating Committee, and monitor and reevaluate them at least every 14 months. When the vehicles are covered either indirectly by analysts or by algorithm, the ratings are assigned monthly. For more detailed information about these ratings, including their methodology, please go to global.morningstar.com/managerdisclosures/.

The Morningstar Medalist Ratings are not statements of fact, nor are they credit or risk ratings. The Morningstar Medalist Rating (i) should not be used as the sole basis in evaluating an investment product, (ii) involves unknown risks and uncertainties which may cause expectations not to occur or to differ significantly from what was expected, (iii) are not guaranteed to be based on complete or accurate assumptions or models when determined algorithmically, (iv) involve the risk that the return target will not be met due to such things as unforeseen changes in management, technology, economic development, interest rate development, operating and/or material costs, competitive pressure, supervisory law, exchange rate, tax rates, exchange rate changes, and/or changes in political and social conditions, and (v) should not be considered an offer or solicitation to buy or sell the investment product. A change in the fundamental factors underlying the Morningstar Medalist Rating can mean that the rating is subsequently no longer accurate.
