Information ratio	0.3

Risk statistics are based on close of market returns (T+1).

Standard deviation (absolute volatility) is a measure of the absolute variability of returns and the larger the standard deviation, the greater the likelihood (and risk) that a fund's results will fluctuate from the average return. It is based on monthly observations using a population standard deviation calculation.

Tracking error (volatility relative to benchmark) measures the volatility of the difference between a portfolio's results and the benchmark.

Information ratio (risk adjusted relative return) represents the value added of the manager (excess return) divided by the tracking error.

36 observations are required for statistical significance

Dividend yield is the income return on the share class and is shown for distributing share classes only. It is calculated over the last 12 months as income earned by the fund after withholding taxes, fees and expenses. Where hedged share classes are listed, the Fund will aim at hedging, with a reasonable margin of tolerance, the main currency exposures of the Fund back into the currency referred to in the relevant Class's designation. It is expected that the resulting effective hedge ratio (i.e. the percentage exposure in the currency of the hedged share class) will typically be in the range of 80% to 100%.

The charges you pay are used to pay the costs of running the fund, including the costs of marketing and distributing it. These charges reduce the potential growth of your investment. In addition to the Total Expense Ratio (TER), entry charges may apply according to provisions described in the Prospectus. However, exit penalties may apply when there is excessive trading or market timing.

Data is likely to change over time and does not constitute a commitment from the management company. Past results are not a guarantee of future results.

Total Expense Ratio (TER) is calculated over the last 12 months with a one month lag. TER data is therefore as at 30 April 2018.
