MARKET COMMENT (BASED ON THE SICAV REFERENCE CURRENCY)

European equity markets continued on a bullish note for the second month in December, closing out 2023 with the third highest annual gains of the past decade. Geopolitical news continued to generate worries with the ongoing war in Ukraine and Israel-Hamas conflict's potential to degenerate into a wider regional war. European macro data remained downbeat, particularly in the Eurozone with weak PMI and inflation at its lowest level since August 2021. In this context, the equity markets' optimism was based mainly on dovish central bank policy expectations after Fed Chair Powell gave a strong hint on rate cuts. Pushbacks by ECB and BoE officials against rate cut bets seemed to have little effect on yields and sentiment. Indeed, both central banks had claimed data dependency for the upcoming policy decisions, which ramped up easing speculations given softer inflation and economic activity at the year end. The Bund fell about 40bps to 2%, Gilts lost about 60 bps and the markets were pricing in expectations of about 150bps of rate cuts for the ECB and 125bps for the BoE in 2024. Among sectors within the MSCI Europe Index, Real Estate, Technology and Semiconductors were the strongest performers amid declining yields and risk-on sentiment, while Software, Retailing and Energy underperformed. In terms of style, Low Risk and Value underperformed while Growth was the strongest performing factor.

In December, the fund increased by 0.73%, underperforming its benchmark by 274bp. The MSCI Europe TR Net increased by 3.47%. The fund records a positive YTD performance of 9.92%, underperforming its benchmark by 417bp.

From an industry groups point of view, both selection and allocation effects detracted from relative performance. Our stock picking in Insurance (-33bp), Utilities (-31bp) and Banks (-31bp) generated the strongest relative losses while the selection in Pharmaceuticals (19bp) and Retailing (12bp) produced small gains. In terms of sector allocation, the underexposure to Capital Goods (-45bp) and overweight in Telecommunication (-33bp) were the most unfavorable positions.

By country, the selection effect explains the relative underperformance while the allocation effect was slightly negative. Our stock picking in Switzerland (-63bp) and the United Kingdom (-41bp) were particularly costly. By contrast, the selection in Belgium (22bp) was supportive. In terms of allocation, the overweight in Spain (-21bp) and underexposure to Sweden (35bp) were particularly unfavorable. With a positive impact of 15bp, the overweight in UCB, a Belgium company operating in the Pharmaceutical sector, was the top contributor to excess returns. With a negative contribution of -29bp, the overexposure to CaixaBank, a Spanish corporation operating in the Bank industry was the largest detractor.
