Key risks

- The value of investments discussed, and any income from them, can fall as well as rise. Investors may not get back the full amount they invest.
- Tax treatment depends on an investor's personal circumstances and may change in the future.
- Tax reliefs depend on the VCT maintaining its VCT-qualifying status.
- VCT shares could fall or rise in value more than other shares listed on the main market of the London Stock Exchange. They may also be harder to sell.
- Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results.

Monthly commentary

The Net Asset Value (NAV) of the Octopus AIM VCT decreased by 3.03% during the month. This compares to a 4.91% fall in the FTSE AIM All Share and a 1.15% decrease in the FTSE All Share, both on a total return basis.

The UK equity market retreated in June, following months of recovery. Price volatility returned mainly due to uncertainty as the UK braces itself for the general election. Encouragingly, macroeconomic indicators are positive, with inflation now at 2% and a cut in interest rates expected at the end of the summer. Undoubtedly, this will provide a more stable platform from which the UK equities market can continue to grow.

Contributors to performance over the month included customer engagement solutions business, Netcall, who reversed the negative share price movement of last month against a backdrop of limited news flow. Technology and software solutions provider, Crimson Tide, who were subject to bid approaches by two publicly listed companies, CheckIt and Ideagen, at approximately a 12% and 92% premium respectively from the traded price prior to the first bid approach. CheckIt has more recently announced that it no longer has an interest in acquiring the company. Software solutions provider, Pulsar Group, saw its shares continue to rally following its positive full year results in May, and increased optimism around future prospects due to its adoption of AI. Musical instrument retailer, Gear4music, published final results showing improved margin, profitability and net debt reduction. Furthermore, the company has made management changes over the last few months, which the market has welcomed.

Contributors to performance over the month included communication services business, Next 15 Group, who gave a four-month trading update in line with market expectations, but which highlights the continued challenges of its current trading environment. Scientific instrument business, Judges Scientific, saw its share price fall despite the announcement of a £2.25 million bolt-on acquisition of Rockwash Geodata, a company specialising in rock cuttings and chippings digitalisation. Software solutions business, IDOX, saw its shares fall despite announcing a positive half year result which highlighted 20% revenue growth, as a result of a full period of contribution from its acquisition of Emapsite. Healthcare software provider, Craneware, saw its share price come back slightly following a sustained period of share price growth.

Despite market weakness in June, we still believe that there are increasing signs of recovery across the market. An example of this is the rising number of IPO and further fundraising which is providing much needed pockets of optimism and market sentiment positivity. Undoubtedly, as appetite for risk increases, this should result in UK smaller growth company share prices improving significantly from recent historic lows, reflective of the trading progress being made by our underlying portfolio companies.
