BOCHK HONG KONG DOLLAR INCOME FUND†

May 2020 Issue
(Data as of 29 April 2020)

Important Notes:

- Investment involves risks and the BOCHK Hong Kong Dollar Income Fund (the "Sub-Fund") may not be suitable for anyone. Past performance is not indicative of future performance. The Sub-Fund is subject to market and exchange rate fluctuations and to the risks inherent in all investments. Price of Units and the income (if any) generated from the Sub-Fund may go down as well as up. Investors could face no returns and/or suffer significant loss related to the investments. There is no guarantee in respect of repayment of principal.
- The key risks to which the Sub-Fund is subject to include: general investment risk, concentration risk, credit/counterparty risk, credit rating risk, downgrading risk, interest rate risk, valuation risk, derivative instruments risk, risk in relation to distribution, risk relating to those class(es) of units denominated in a currency other than the base currency, cross-class liability risk and risk associated with instruments with loss-absorption features.
- The Manager will normally make distributions out of net income received or receivable by the relevant class of Units of the Sub-Fund. However, in the event that the net income is insufficient to pay the distributions that it declares, the Manager may also, in its absolute discretion, determine that in relation to a particular class of Units of the Sub-Fund, distributions be paid out of its capital, or the Manager may, in its discretion, pay distributions out of its gross income while charging / paying all or part of its fees and expenses to / out of its capital, resulting in an increase in distributable income for the payment of distributions by the relevant class of Units of the Sub-Fund and therefore, the relevant class of Units of the Sub-Fund may effectively pay distributions out of capital. This may reduce the capital that the relevant class of Units of the Sub-Fund has available for investment in future and may constrain capital growth.
- Investors should be aware that in circumstances where distributions are paid out of capital or effectively out of capital, this amounts to a return or withdrawal of part of the amount investors originally invested or from any capital gains attributable to that original investment. Any distributions involving payment of distributions out of capital or payment of distributions effectively out of capital (as the case may be) may result in an immediate decrease in the Net Asset Value per Unit.
- Please refer to the offering document of the Sub-Fund for further details including investment objectives and policies, charges and expenses, and risk factors, before making any investment decision.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVES AND POLICIES

The BOCHK Hong Kong Dollar Income Fund seeks to provide a stable income stream and long-term capital appreciation through investing at least 70% of its non-cash assets in a portfolio which mainly consists of Hong Kong dollar denominated investment grade bonds. The Sub-Fund may invest not more than 30% of its Net Asset Value in debt instruments with loss-absorption features (LAP).

MANAGER'S COMMENT††

On Market

The latest outturn of local data came weak as expected. Social distancing efforts to contain the COVID-19 spread have led to a contraction in economic activity and rise in unemployment. This challenge compounded damages from the prolonged social unrest and Sino-U.S. trade conflicts, resulting in a further credit rating downgrade to AA- by Fitch Rating. To alleviate the pandemic impacts on the economy, Hong Kong announced a further round of economic relief measures totaling HK$137.5 billion in April, which risks pushing higher the fiscal deficit for this year.

In bond markets, yields fell across maturities. Carry trade activities favoring HKD triggered interventions by Hong Kong Monetary Authority (HKMA), as the local currency hit the strong side of its 7.75-7.85/USD allowable trading band. The interventions, plus lower issuance of Exchange Fund bills, raised the aggregate balance by nearly 57 per cent to HK$84.7 billion. It helped push the borrowing costs down, with the 1-month Hong Kong Interbank Offered Rates (HIBOR) falling by as much as 90 basis points to 1.15%. Meanwhile, bond yields dropped, with the 2-year and 10-year Exchange Fund Note yields falling by 24 basis points and 14 basis points in the month respectively.

On Portfolio

The Sub-Fund returned positively for April. HKD bond bulls alongside tighter credit spreads boded well to performance for the month. However, macro uncertainty amid virus evolution remains, likely keeping bond market volatility high in the near term. As a defensive play, we adhere to a short-duration strategy whilst favoring high-quality credits for yield enhancement.

* Before 1 December 2017, the Manager had the discretion to make distributions for the Sub-Fund on a semi-annual basis and distributions were paid out of net income only. With effect from 1 December 2017, the distribution policy of the Sub-Fund has been revised so that (i) the Manager may, subject to its discretion, declare distributions on a quarterly basis; (ii) distributions will normally be paid out of net income, and in the event that the net income is insufficient to pay the distributions, the Manager may determine in its discretion that in relation to a particular class of Units of the Sub-Fund, distributions be paid out of its capital, or the Manager may, in its discretion, pay distributions out of its gross income while charging/paying all or part of its fees and expenses to/out of its capital, resulting in an increase in distributable income for the payment of distributions by the relevant class of Units of the Sub-Fund and therefore, the relevant class of Units of the Sub-Fund may effectively pay distributions out of capital. The Manager has discretion as to whether or not to make any distributions for the Sub-Fund, the frequency of distributions, the dates and the amount of distributions. The Manager also has the discretion to determine if and to what extent distributions will be paid out of capital of the Sub-Fund. Please refer to the "Notice to Unitholders" dated 1 November 2017 for details.
