REVIEW

For the half year ended 31 December 2020, the Fund returned 2.6%, while the benchmark 12-month Singapore Interbank Offer Rate - 0.25% returned 0.3%, in SGD terms.

Global interest rates initially fell with the US 10 year Treasury hitting a low of 0.51% as the coronavirus spread in the US and Europe pummeled global economies. Interest rates subsequently rose, finishing the year higher on news of Pfizer and BioNTech's COVID-19 vaccine's efficacy and the expectation of fiscal stimulus from the US government.

Fed chair Powell unveiled a major shift in monetary policy to target an average inflation of 2% over time, thereby allowing inflation and employment to overshoot after periods of weakness. Market took this as a signal for higher long end rates, causing the US yield curve to steepen.

Credit spreads compressed during 2H 2020 as investors turned risk-on as the vaccine announcements gave market optimism with at least some light at the end of the tunnel. The low interest rate environment led to a global hunt for yield, driving corporate bond spreads lower.

SGD continued its strength against USD, as most Asian currencies were led stronger by a strong Chinese renminbi, which continued to strengthen despite The People's Bank of China's removal of reserve requirement to short USD. SGS outperformed US Treasuries as the SGD market remained flushed with liquidity. This also resulted in persistent low yields on MAS bills leading to outperformance in short-dated corporate bonds.

The Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS) in October 2020 meeting kept its policy unchanged with the rate of appreciation of the policy band kept at zero percent per annum. This accommodative policy is appropriate given the weaker economic and low inflationary outlook brought about by the pandemic.

The SGD strengthened against the USD during 2H 2020, led by a strong Chinese renminbi. With the SGD market flushed with liquidity, yields on short dated corporate bonds fell, allowing the bonds to perform.

STRATEGY AND OUTLOOK

The Democrat's win in the Georgia runoff election leading to a Blue Wave has led the market to price in higher US Treasury rates. With the control of Congress, the US is expected to implement large fiscal stimulus to put the country back to the path of recovery. Together with the implementation of vaccine deployment leading to reopening in 2H 2021, we expect interest rates in the mid to long end of the yield curve to move higher. Short end rates in the meanwhile are expected to trade around current levels as the Fed is not expected to raise rates over the next two years.

The Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS) is expected to keep their policy unchanged in 1H 2021 given the weak state of the economy brought about by the pandemic. Fiscal policy is expected to be supportive in 2021, though will be unlike the blockbuster measures seen in 2020.

While we are wary of the rise in long end rates, the continued reflation trade and strong inflows to credits bodes well for investing in corporate bonds. The Fund will be mindful of duration risk while continuing to invest in high quality credits to earn the carry.

4. FINANCIAL RATIOS (continued)

The expense ratio has been computed based on the guidelines laid down by the Investment Management Association of Singapore ("IMAS"). The calculation of the expense ratio at 31 December 2020 was based on total operating expenses divided by the average net asset value for the year. The total operating expenses do not include (where applicable) brokerage and other transaction costs, performance fee, interest expense, distribution paid out to unitholders, foreign exchange gains/losses, front or back end loads arising from the purchase or sale of other funds and tax deducted at source or arising out of income received. Expenses which are common to all Classes are apportioned based on the proportion of NAV of respective Class. The Fund does not pay any performance fee. The average net asset values are based on the daily balances.
