Investment Information

Investment Objective & Strategy

The fund seeks to achieve long term capital appreciation, with limited income, while limiting exposure to downturns in the U.S. equity markets over the long term. The core portion of the portfolio is designed to provide broad, representative exposure to major asset classes within the framework to select funds that can potentially add alpha and outperformance for that exposure; the portfolio is hedged using the Sentry strategy in an effort to curb volatility and limit loss during major market declines.

Investment Process:

The Fund's objective is to own an actively managed portfolio of U.S. equity, international equity, and fixed income vehicles, along with a small allocation to alternative investments. The equity portion of the portfolio is always hedged using S&P 500 put options and/or volatility ETFs and ETNs. The hedging portion of the portfolio is managed so as to try to provide the maximum amount of downside protection possible while minimizing the cost of hedging. The U.S. equity, international equity, and fixed income portions of the portfolio are managed in accordance with a core-satellite approach. The core portion of the portfolio is designed to provide broad, representative exposure to major asset classes, and within that framework to select funds that can potentially add alpha and outperformance for that exposure. The U.S. equity, international equity, and fixed income core portions of the portfolio own predominantly mutual funds, but also can own broad asset class ETFs to obtain representative asset class exposure. When screening for mutual funds, the Sub-Advisor looks for funds that have strong relative performance within their investment category, strong bear market performance, low expenses, and manageable fund size. The fixed income core portion of the portfolio only invests in investment grade quality credits. The satellite portion of the portfolio is designed to dynamically allocate between securities within an asset class as that security displays relative strength. This portion of the portfolio has a number of different sections. Each slice uses a quantitative system to rank the relative strength of an ETF within its larger universe of ETFs. Universes include U.S. Equity Style, U.S. Sectors, International Equity, Global Macro (allocating between asset classes) and Fixed Income. Within each universe, the ETFs with the strongest relative strength are identified and purchased as holdings. The fixed income satellite portion of the portfolio allocates the portfolio between high yield bonds, treasury bonds, and cash using a relative strength ranking methodology that ranks these three fixed income instruments. The final section of the satellite portion of the portfolio invests in Alternative asset classes using a relative strength ranking methodology to invest in Commodities, Currencies, Fixed Income, and to make tactical equity trades. To reduce downside risk, up to 15% of the Fund may invest in a combination of S&P 500 Index put options, and S&P 500 or any other major equity index Volatility ETFs or ETNs ("Sentry"). The use of volatility instruments is strictly for hedging purposes and not for speculation.

Morningstar Rating™

The Morningstar Rating™ for funds, or "star rating", is calculated for investments funds and separate accounts with at least a three-year history. Exchange-traded funds and open-ended mutual funds are considered a single population for comparative purposes. It is calculated based on a Morningstar Risk-Adjusted Return measure that accounts for variation in a managed product's monthly excess performance, placing more emphasis on downward variations and rewarding consistent performance. The top 10% of products in each product category receive 5 stars, the next 22.5% receive 4 stars, the next 35% receive 3 stars, the next 22.5% receive 2 stars, and the bottom 10% receive 1 star. The Overall Morningstar Rating for a managed product is derived from a weighted average of the performance figures associated with its three-, five-, and 10-year (if applicable) Morningstar Rating metrics.

For collective investment trusts (CITs), the Morningstar Rating presented is hypothetical, because Morningstar does not independently analyze CITs. Rather, the rating is assigned as a means to compare these funds with the universe of mutual funds that Morningstar rates. The evaluation of this investment does not affect the retail mutual fund data published by Morningstar.

Morningstar Return

The Morningstar Return rates a fund's performance relative to other managed products in its Morningstar Category. It is an assessment of a product's excess return over a risk-free rate (the return of the 90-day Treasury Bill) in comparison with the products in its Morningstar category. In each Morningstar category, the top 10% of products earn a High Morningstar Return (High), the next 22.5% Above Average (+Avg), the middle 35% Average (Avg), the next 22.5% Below Average (-Avg), and the bottom 10% Low (Low). Morningstar Return is measured for up to three time periods (three, five, and 10 years). These separate measures are then weighted and averaged to produce an overall measure for the product. Products with less than three years of performance history are not rated.

Morningstar Risk

Morningstar Risk evaluates a fund's downside volatility relative to that of other products in its Morningstar Category. It is an assessment of the variations in monthly returns, with an emphasis on downside variations, in comparison with the products in its Morningstar category. In each Morningstar category, the 10% of products with the lowest measured risk are described as Low Risk (Low), the next 22.5% Below Average (-Avg), the middle 35% Average (Avg), the next 22.5% Above Average (+Avg), and the top 10% High (High). Morningstar Risk is measured for up to three time periods (three, five, and 10 years). These separate measures are then weighted and averaged to produce an overall measure for the product. Products with less than three years of performance history are not rated.

Morningstar Style Box™

For equity funds, the vertical axis shows the market capitalization of the long stocks owned and the horizontal axis shows investment style (value, blend, or growth).

For fixed-income funds, the vertical axis shows the credit quality of the long bonds owned, and the horizontal axis shows interest rate sensitivity as measured by a bond's effective duration.

Morningstar seeks credit rating information from fund companies on a periodic basis (e.g., quarterly). In compiling credit rating information, Morningstar accepts credit ratings reported by fund companies that have been issued by all Nationally Recognized Statistical Rating Organizations (NRSROs). For a list of all NRSROs, please visit <http://www.sec.gov/ocr/ratingagency.html>. Additionally, Morningstar accepts foreign credit ratings from widely recognized or registered rating agencies. If two rating organizations/agencies have rated a security, fund companies are to report the lower rating; if three or more organizations/agencies have rated a security, fund companies are to report the median rating, and in cases where there are more than two organization/agency ratings and a median rating does not exist, fund companies are to use the lower of the two middle ratings. PLEASE NOTE: Morningstar, Inc. is not itself an NRSRO nor does it issue a credit rating on the fund. An NRSRO or rating agency ratings can change from time-to-time.

For credit quality, Morningstar combines the credit rating information provided by the fund companies with an average default rate calculation to come up with a weighted-average credit quality. The weighted-average credit quality is currently a letter that roughly corresponds to the scale used by a leading NRSRO. Bond funds are assigned a style box placement of "low", "medium", or "high" based on their average credit quality. Funds with a low credit quality are those whose weighted-average credit quality is determined to be less than "BBB-"; medium are those less than "AA-", but greater or equal to "BBB-"; and high are those with a weighted-average credit quality of "AA-" or higher. When classifying a bond portfolio, Morningstar first maps the NRSRO credit ratings of the underlying holdings to their respective default rates (as determined by Morningstar's analysis of actual historical default rates). Morningstar then averages these default rates to determine the average default rate for the entire bond fund. Finally, Morningstar maps this average default rate to its corresponding credit rating along a convex curve.

For interest-rate sensitivity, Morningstar obtains from fund companies the average effective duration. Generally, Morningstar classifies a fixed-income fund's interest-rate sensitivity based on the effective duration of the Morningstar Core Bond Index (MCBI), which is currently three years. The classification of Limited will be assigned to those funds whose average effective duration is between 25% to 75% of MCBI's average effective duration; funds whose average effective duration is between 75% to 125% of the MCBI will be classified as Moderate; and those that are at 125% or greater of the average effective duration of the MCBI will be classified as Extensive. In addition, for non-US taxable and non-US domiciled fixed income funds, static duration breakpoints are used: (i) Limited: less than or equal to 3.5 years; (ii) Moderate: greater than 3.5 and less than equal to 6 years; (iii) Extensive: greater than 6 years.
