REPORT OF THE MANAGER TO THE UNITHOLDERS

MARKET REVIEW

The first half of 2018 has experienced a moderating deleverage environment with more structural easing accommodation as PBOC announced to cut RRR with lower market funding rate. The deleveraging campaign has also turned milder with less emphasis on broad-based financial tightening as the downside risk on domestic economy has risen given deteriorating trade war background and slump in social financing and infrastructure investment from local government. The yield curve has steepened year to day with long end drop by 40-50Bps to 3.5% / 4.25% level respectively and short end R007 declined from 3.12% to around 2.5% level. On the credit sector, the deteriorating credit profile of lower tier issuers on back of deleveraging pressure and stricter refunding access has led to over 20 corporate bond defaults, which has been much higher versus previous year. Most of the defaulters so far have been private businesses but there have been signs of debt stress in the publicly traded sector as well. Investors have been more defensive and favored short to medium term credit bond with higher quality.

MARKET OUTLOOK

Looking ahead into 2H2018, we believe the positive environment for bond market will extend meanwhile the opportunity will remain periodical given complicated external environment and uncertainty on the policy sector. We think the macro performance will be beneficial for the bond investors as we think inflation has peaked in 2Q2018 and the recent weakening in economy will continue. On the monetary policy side, we are comfortable with current liquidity environment and the structural credit accommodation will be positive for high quality issuers including LGFV sector.

We forecast fixed income market volatility to remain high meanwhile there remains room for yields to go lower. The curve will likely further bull steepen in the loose liquidity environment. We think possibility of substantial expansion of wealth management products (WMP) through leveraging up again is low while mutual fund investors may be more aggressive in credit space investment.

PERFORMANCE

As of 30 Jun 2018, Taikang Kaitai Corporate Bond Fund achieved 1.04% in return as of 2018 and 11.329% since established in June 2014. The fund diversifies its holdings among different asset classes including corporate bonds, convertible bonds, and bond funds to capture both stable absolute return and extra opportunities in market volatility.
