Calculation of net asset value (NAV)

The securities' market value is the basis for the calculation of the fund's value and return. For securities where there is no market value, the management company specifies a value on an objective and consistent basis. The fund's net asset value is normally calculated at 4:30 p.m. CET on each trading day. The fund's net asset value is not calculated when markets in which an essential share of the fund's portfolio are invested are closed. ODIN Forvaltning AS is not liable for customers' losses or damage in connection with the NAV calculation that are due to conditions beyond the company's control, e.g. power failure, strike, faults in data processing systems or telecommunications networks or errors committed by the company's sub-contractors.

Announcement of subscription and redemption prices

Information about the asset value is normally published daily by Oslo Stock Exchange (Oslo Børs ASA) to a number of Norwegian newspapers and is also available on our website, www.odinfond.no.

In Sweden, subscription, redemption and switching between funds are done c/o ODIN Fonder, a branch of ODIN Forvaltning AS, located at Kungsgatan 30, 111 35 Stockholm, Sweden, org.no. 516402-8044. Pricing will occur on the same day that the subscription amount is credited the fund's bank account. Notification of subscription of fund units cannot be made conditional or be withdrawn. Payment for redeemed units shall be made in the same currency as the units were subscribed for.

Transfers between funds with global and Nordic/European mandates

A request to transfer from or to a fund with a global mandate must have been received by 3pm (Norwegian time) in order for the transfer to be assigned the next day's unit price.

Suspension of the right of redemption

In the event of a stock exchange closure or other, similar extraordinary circumstances, as well as in cases where it is justified on the basis of unitholders' interests, ODIN Forvaltning AS may seek the Financial Supervisory Authority of Norway's consent to wholly or partially postpone the valuation and payment of redemptions. In assessing whether such a measure should be implemented, ODIN Forvaltning AS will place particular emphasis on ensuring equal treatment of the fund's unitholders.

The fund manager invests freely within the framework of the mandate in what the fund manager thinks are good, undervalued companies. The fund is index-independent – importance is not attached to the size of the companies or to their weight in the market indices. Investment decisions are made on the basis of our own thorough company analyses, which are based on a number of different sources, e.g. visits to the companies and conversations with the companies' management. ODIN's fund managers look for good undervalued companies that have good attitudes, also with regard to ethical issues.

Return and risk

For up-to-date information on the historical returns and risk of the fund, see the key information for the fund. Up-to-date information on returns is also available on ODIN Forvaltning's website (see section 1 of this Prospectus).

Historical returns are no guarantee of future returns. Future returns will, among other things, depend on market trends, the skill of the manager, the risk level of the fund and the costs associated with subscription, management and redemption. The return may be negative as a consequence of drawdowns.

The fund's return may fluctuate during a year. Realised losses or gains from investing in fund units will therefore be dependent on the exact time of purchase and sale.

Tax

The following sets out briefly the tax regulations that apply to mutual funds and unitholders. The following information does not constitute tax advice. Rules and practices in the area of taxation law are under constant development and may be subject to amendments in the future.

ODIN Forvaltning AS may be obligated to provide information about unit-holders' holdings in ODIN's Equity Mutual Fund to Norwegian and foreign authorities notwithstanding statutory duty of non-disclosure. Please contact your local tax consultant for more information.

Tax rules applicable to the mutual fund

This fund is tax domiciled in Norway. Ordinary income is taxed at 22 per cent (2020). However, the fund is exempt from liability to pay tax on equity gains and does not allow for deductions in lieu of losses when realising shares. Dividends and gains from investments that fall under the exemption method are also tax-free, with the exception of 3 per cent of tax-free dividends. Net interest income, foreign exchange gains, dividends from companies outside the exemption method and capital gains on interest-bearing securities are included in taxable income for the fund. Deductions from the fund's taxable income include deductible costs. The fund's management fee is usually the most significant cost item in this regard.

The fund is exempt from wealth tax.

The fund does not pay dividends.

Tax for private investors with tax liability in Norway

Gains from the realisation of units in mutual funds are included in ordinary income. Ordinary income is taxed at 22 per cent, but the rate for equity income is adjusted upwards by a factor of 1.44, which results in an effective tax rate of 31.68 per cent (2020). Gains deducted from the deductible allowance are taxed at 31.68 per cent when the fund's equity proportion is greater than 80 per cent. Losses upon the realisation are deductible and are adjusted upwards by the same factor (1.44). Exchange of unit classes in the same fund does not entail a taxable disposal.

Fund units are included in taxable capital calculation. Shares in securities funds are valued at the asset value on 1 January of the tax determination year. Share units in securities funds are valued at 65 per cent of the share unit's value

Share savings accounts

Personal taxpayers resident in the EEA can establish share savings accounts. Deposits on the account can be used to invest in listed shares and equity certificates in companies domiciled in the EEA, and units in equity funds domiciled in the EEA (mutual funds with a more than an 80 per cent proportion of shares at the start of the income year).

Gains from the realisation of listed shares, listed equity certificates, and units in equity funds linked to the share savings account are not liable for tax and losses do not provide a right to a deduction. The same applies to dividends from such equity interests.

Withdrawals up to the total deposited shall be regarded as repayments of deposits and are deemed to be withdrawn first. Such withdrawals are not taxed, although they do reduce the basis for the dividend tax exemption. Withdrawals that exceed repayments of deposits into the account will be regarded as taxable income that, after the deduction of any dividend tax exemption, is taxed at a rate of 31.68 per cent (2020). The dividend tax exemption is calculated on the basis of the lowest deposit balance on the account during the income year plus the unused dividend tax exemption from previous years. Account holders' dividend tax exemption will be established as of 31 December of the income year. In the case of account holders resident abroad, withdrawals in excess of deposits into the account will be regarded as dividends.

When share savings accounts are closed, the balance on the account less the deposits on the account is taxed in the same way as withdrawals. If the balance on the account is lower than the deposits on the account, the difference is regarded as a deductible loss on shares. The loss is adjusted by a factor of 1.44 (2020).

Individual Pension Savings (IPS)

Fund units may be included in IPS. Deposits into IPS result in deferral of tax.

IPS schemes bought before 1 November 2017 will comply with the old tax rules for IPS schemes. New unitholders were not permitted to buy IPS schemes based on the old tax rules from this date. The old scheme rules allow you to save up to NOK 15,000 per annum. The amount saved can be deducted from ordinary income and payments are taxed as personal income. The earliest payout age under the old scheme is 62 years old and the funds must be paid out at least until you turn 77, and in any case for at least 10 years.

As of 1 November 2017, new rules apply to IPS. Unitholders with fund units in a new IPS scheme may save up to NOK 40,000 per annum. This amount can be deducted from ordinary income, although such that if deposits are made into both the old and the new schemes in the same income year, the deductibles for the two schemes must be coordinated such that the total deductible does not exceed NOK 40,000. Payments are taxed as ordinary income. The earliest payout age is 62 years old and the funds must at least be paid out until you turn 80, and in any case for at least 10 years. The funds deposited in the scheme are exempt from wealth tax and ongoing income tax on the return. Tax is charged when a withdrawal is made.

Company investors (legal persons)

Companies that are covered by the exemption method are not liable to tax on any gains upon the realisation of units in funds with an equity proportion in excess of 80 per cent. Corresponding losses are not deductible. Net losses may not be deducted either during the income year or by being carried over to later years.

Tax for unitholders with tax liability outside Norway

Unitholders with tax liabilities in countries other than Norway are encouraged to examine the tax regulations in their respective countries.

Obligations of the custodian institution

The custodian institution's obligations are pursuant to the Norwegian Securities Funds Act and the Act on the Management of Alternative Investment Funds, as well as associated regulations.
